Justice Aides Expected to Ask Levi If They May Seek Indictments in Taps, Bugs and Burglaries

By JOHN CREWDSON

Special on Pile New York Times WASHINGTON, Nov. 8-Justice Department lawyers have reportedly concluded that they have evidence to support criminal charges against 10 to 20 past and present officials of the Federal Bureau of Investigation who either knew of or approved illegal investigative techniques employed by bureau agents in recent years. According to Federal sources, prosecuors in the department's civil rights division have found evidence of illegal wiretaps, bugs, burglaries and mail openings and an abortive plot by bureau agents in New York City to kidnap a woman they believed to be linked to members of the terrorist Weather Underground. The prosecutors, the sources said, have prepared a long memorandum outlining the case against the bureau officials. The case has emerged from hours of grand jury testimony and examination of bureau documents over the last five months by a special panel in the criminal section of the civil rights division.

ELECTION PRESSURE MOUNTS

Constitutional Clash Is Possible If House of Lords Stands By Amendments to Key Bills

By ROBERT B. SEMPLE Jr.

Special to The New York Times LONDON, Nov. 8 - Britain's Government narrowly survived three crucial tests tonight in which it sought to speed passage of controversial legislation, much of it demanded by the governing Labor

Party's left wing. But the votes showed that Prime Minister James Callaghan's legislative position had suffered from recent election losses, and the narrow margin of his victory—in one case, by only one vote-raised the possibility of a major constitutional class with the House of Lords. The votes represented the first test of, the mood of the House of Commons since three elections to fill vacant seats last week, two of which were won by the Conservatives in normally pro-Labor

Part of Labor's Manifesto

The Conservative Party leader, Margaret Thatcher, voted tonight but allowed members of her "shadow Cabinet" to do most of the talking in the debate. Yet tonight's votes-in recent weeks, the Government has been winning major tests by a margin of 20 or more-has clearly strengthened her desire to step up pressure on the Government to call for a general election.

The purpose of tonight's votes was to impose a motion that would limit debate on five separate measures in an effort to pass them in the few remaining weeks of the present session of Parliament.

All five measures are part of the Labor Party's manifesto and are regarded by the left wing as an important quid pro quo for its rather sullen support of Mr. Callaghan's conservative economic pro-

The Government won by a margin of only one vote-311-310-on the motion dealing with the bill to nationalize the shipbuilding and aircraft industries.

Comparatively Easy Victory

It won by a margin of 310-307 on a motion dealing with two separate bills parting private patients from publicly supported hospitals, and giving the powerful dock workers much wider jurisdiction over cargo handling near ports.

The Government had a comparatively easy victory on a motion dealing with bills that would give it new powers to impose so-called "comprehensive" education on local school districts, and giving new rights of tenure to farm workers The margin on this motion was 16 votes.

In a narrow sense, the Government's victories tonight mean that the five measened by the House of Lords, will be debatand send the bills back to the Lords in their original state.

More broadly, however, the action tonight could set the stage for a major constitutional argument involving the power of the House of Lords to revise or delay legislation.

Richard, King of Book Dealers, Set to Proclaim Welsh Kingdom

By PETER T. KILBORN

HAY-ON-WYE, Wales — Richard Booth is an English-born Welshman, heir to the depleted fortune of a great uncle who married a Welsh brewer's daughter. He is a 38-year-old bachelor, a man in rumpled clothes with storm-tossed hair who misses whole patches of his jaw when he shaves.

He lives in the small, partly ruined Norman castle here. "I bought it," he said, "because I couldn't live with my parents." Now he wants to be a king in a castle, so in January, he said, he will declare the independence of this tiny Welsh border village of 1,200, introduce the Hay national sausage, and crown himself King Richard the Book-

Mr. Booth is a bit of a backwoods P.T. Barnum. He also happens to be a very big businessman for this part of the world, probably one of the big-gest in all of Wales. His business is secondhand books. There's little reason to doubt his claim to ownership of the world's largest secondhand bookshop. actually seven shops in Hay, which include a converted chapel, a fire station, and Hay's only movie theater.

Book Trade Growing Several merchants have followed Mr. Booth into the business, opening shops of their own. Others sell books on the side. Hay, as a result, is probably the largest source of secondhand books

This is the only town in the world," said Mr. Booth, "where the bookshops are bigger than the supermarket."

Mr. Booth brings in his books in moving vans. They come mostly from the eastern United States, where he buys up entire inventories of bankrupt wholesale book distributors. He also offers £100 ($163) to anyone who can help him buy up libraries of 3,000 or more books.

He has well over a million books in stock, and during the peak of the summer tourist season, he said, he sells up to 5,000 a day, at prices ranging from a few pennies to £1,000.

Plans for a Plebiscite

The bureaucrats in London could well intercept Mr. Booth's royal ambitions. But he is not likely to get much resist-ance here, as he hopes to show in a plebiscite six months after his coronation. He has been very good for Hay. Like many Welsh towns, Hay has suffered from decades of economic decline, a consequence, according to Welsh nationalists, of the policies of the British Government in London. Some of the coal mines in the area have closed, aggravating the area's high level of unemployment, and many poor farmers have fled to the factories and big cities of England.

But over the 14 years that Mr. Booth has been building his business, Hay has been coming back to life with old books and bookish tourists, whom local merchants rate a good deal higher than most other tourists.

"This isn't Piccadilly Circus," said the proprietor of a variety store. "You don't get the mobs wearing cowboy hats with "Kiss me quick" written on University His Nemesis Mr. Booth has a few theories about books and the secondhand book business. He sees the university as the "The university has done enormous harm to private culture," he said. "It has killed secondhand bookstores, private libraries, our Welsh workingmen's libraries, private literary and philosophical societies, small religious libraries." "Books," he said, "should be cheap. But universities have made them expensive and institutional. They pay more for books. And when books get into universities, they're hardly read.

No direct evidence has come to light, but Athanasios Papageorghiou, director of the excavation, said of the basilica:

In the last few years archeologists have

PAPHOS, Cyprus-For centuries travel-

Richard Booth at his book warehouse in Hay-on-Wye, Wales.

If you want to look at the decline of this country, look at Oxford and Cambridge.

He has a theory about reviving the secondhand book. It centers on Hay and, of course, on Mr. Booth.

"The secondhand book," he said, "can have a renaissance through a kind of internationalization. Say you're interested in the First World War poetry. There are 10 people like you in London 10 in Paris, and 10 in New York." That, he said, was not enough to justify a bookstore in each of those cities carry-ing a stock of World War I poetry books. But if all those collectors shopped in Hay, he said, then Hay could make it pay.

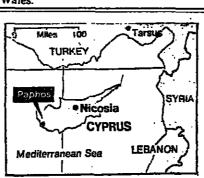

Theory of the Logical Bookshop

"What you have to do is get back to the theory of the logical bookshop," Mr. Booth said. "Your books and your victims have to come from all over the world." He said "victim" was just the local slang for customer.

Mr. Booth's biggest challenge, of course, is making Hay a bigger spot on the bookbuyer's map than other cities. It's a problem because the customer can only get there by car, a twohour drive from London, and even then he can miss it because most of the town is hidden from the highway.

He copes, in part, with his promises of kingdoms and sausages. He's also diversifying to attract new interest in Hay. "We're going to publish The Arabian Times of Hay," he said, for sale in the Middle East. "It will be the first newspaper published in Arabic in Wales."

JERUSALEM, Nov. 8-Israeli officials by Henry A. Kissinger is at an end. are predicting a year of renewed diplomatic activity aimed at finding a peace settlement that may result in conflict between Israel and the United States.

Before the American election, Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin was telling audiences that 1977 would augur a year of ough diplomatic bargaining regardless of whether President Ford or Jimmy Carter was elected. Mr. Rabin told a student forum the other day that this feeling was based, in part, on the fact that since the 1967 war "neither the Republicans nor the Democrats have accepted our interpretation of what we call secure borders and we have yet to see what will happen with the Palestinian issue."

Some Foreign Ministry officials are pointing to a number of developments, mostly in the Arab nations, that they feel will lead to an end of the current diplomatic lull.

These include the recent improvement in relations between Syria and Egypt, which the Israelis feel may result in concerted anti-Israeli moves on the diplomatic front. In addition, the Israelis expect new attacks to be mounted in the United Nations General Assembly.

"The really tough time for us in the General Assembly is just beginning," one Foreign Ministry official said today.

Change in P.L.O. Position Doubted

Reports from abroad that representatives of the Palestine Liberation Organization are softening their posture and are expressing a willingness to deal with Israel are dismissed as reprises of propaganda devices used in the past, in the prevailing Israeli view, the Palestinians have shown no shift in policy.

During the coming weeks, Israeli officials will be keeping a sharp eye on what occurs during the transition in Washington. Overall, officials do not expect any basic change in America's posture of sup-

Angola Reported to Wage All-Out Drive on Guerrillas Greek Government Is Moving to Education for Adults

OSHAKATI, South-West Africa, Nov. 8 (Reuters)—Heavy fighting has reportedly broken out in southern Angola, with Government forces there seeking to crush a nationalist movement that has continued to wage guerrilla warfare against South African officials here said refugees from the combat area who fled to South-West Africa over the weekend told them that Angolan Government troops backed by tanks and planes had begun an all-out offensive against guerrillas of the rebel Union for the Total Independence of Angola. The Government drive reportedly was being aided by Cuban soldiers and guerrillas of the South-West African People's Organization.

The rebel Angolan organization was one of the two nationalist movements debe the first wo harbanish investment for the feated in the civil war early this year by the ruling Popular Movement for the Liberation of Angola, which had the aid of Cuban troops and Soviet supplies. But the rebel group was not crushed;

it faded into the Angolan forests and, under the leadership of Jonas Savimbi, continued fighting the Angolan Government with hit-and-run guerrilla attacks. These attacks have increased recently. The offensive against the guerrillas was reported as the Angolan Government prepared for celebrations on Thursday to mark the first anniversary of Angolau independence from Portugal. 8,000 Reported to Fice

A South African Government official here said the refugees "told us that planes, tanks and heavy guns are being used against them and the fighting is going on in the towns and in the bush." The official said that about 3,000 refugees had crossed the border from Angola in the last few days, bringing to 8,000 the number fleeing from their homeland this year.

"They are very frightened and dumb-struck," he said. "Mostly they are women and children."

The official gave no figure for casual-ties in the fighting but said the toll was thought to be high.

of the Angolan border, said South African troops using binoculars had seen Cuban forces taking over small towns and villages in an area where the Savimbi move-ment has considerable popular support. Firing could be heard from the war zone, the sources said.

South African Government sources said 15,000 to 18,000 Cuban troops were believed to be still in Angola.

The South African Army was reported to be taking care of refugees pouring across the border into South-West Africa, which is administered from Pretoria under a disputed mandate by the defunct League of Nations.

me time Peking summoned Ma Tienui, a leading radical in the Shanghai vernment and Communist Party, and ou Chun-lin, the Shanghai garrison mmander, to the capital.

The two proceeded to Peking but not fore Mr. Ma had arranged a code that mid permit him to communicate with a fellow radicals in Shanghai by teleone.

Throughout Oct. 7 and 8, the radicals Shanghai frantically tried to reach iss Chiang and the three other radicals to had retained their posts in the anghai government after moving to the up senior positions in Peking some tars previously. These attempts were successful because the four had already en placed under arrest, apparently at wn on Oct. 7.

Code Message Indicates Trouble

Just after midnight on Oct. 8, according the posters. Mr. Ma's secretary telefloned to Shanghai and told the persons the other end of the line that he had stomachache. This was a code indicating that the moderates had taken controller in the day another radical telefloned to say that his mother had had heart attack. This meant that the four dical leaders were in serious trouble. In the evening of Oct. 8 the standing ministee of the Communist Party in hanghai held a secret meeting. One radial leader was assigned to tell the newsapers and radio stations that they must heck with him before relaying any artises or announcements of an important ature from Peking. Another leading radial at the meeting declared that if revisionism reared its head in Peking, Shangai would revolt.

At I A.M. on Oct. 9 the radicals held meeting of militia leaders. For years he radicals had been trying to assert ontrol over the militia and to reduce he traditional control of the army so hat they would have an armed power ase for exactly this sort of situation. Orders went out to mobilize 30,000 nilitiamen and give them guns and amnunition rather than the truncheons they issually used. According to the posters, he arming and mobilizing was accombished later that day.

Late in the evening of Oct. 9 or early on Oct. 10, Mr. Ma telephoned from Peking and said that Chiang Ching and the three other radicals were busy with their work and could not be reached.

Two Other Radicals Summone

Hours earlier, two other key radical leaders. Hsu Ching-hsien and Wang Hsiuchen, had also been summoned to Peking. They went. Their colleagues in Shanghai agreed that if the two did not return within a few days the revolt must begin. On Tuesday, Oct. 12, two aides to Wang Hung-wen, one of the four purged radicals, said at another meeting of the Shanghai Communist Party Committee that the three radicals summoned to Peking had probably been arrested and that the time had come for the armed pullitia to take up their posts and for orkers to begin a general strike.

They proposed that the Shanghai radio gin broadcasting two declarations—one ned at the people of China, the other the people of the world—announcing it Shanghai was in evolt against a visionist," or rightist, takeover in Pek-

The Folks at Foggy Bottom View Life Without Kissinger

By BERNARD GWERTZMAN

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8-Henry A. Kissinger's departure as Secretary of State next Jan. 20 has already begun evoking nostaigia at the State Department, where Mr. Kissinger has ruled for the last three years like a stern but respected schoolmaster. "You wonder who will replace him and you wonder if the place will ever be the same again," a senior assistant said the other

Mr. Kissinger was not loved by the 12,000 in the department and overseas and he was not in love with the bureaucracy either. But now, with little more than two mouths to go in office, even his detractors are saying that with his flair for the dramatic, his demanding criteria for excellence, and his abilmy to appoint good men to important jobs, he has left a mark on Foggy Bottom that will never be erased.

Jimmy Carter's victory has already caused a problem for virtually every foreign embassy here. Whether it liked the Ford Administration's policy to-ward its government or not, at least each embassy knew what it was and had grown accustomed to it. Now, the ambassadors and senior diplomats have come under pressure from their governments to report whether Mr. Carter will alter this country's foreign policy toward them and their regions.

Several ambassadors have discreetly asked for appointments with Mr. Carter but so far he has refused to meet with any foreign representatives. One am-bassador, pressed by his government for a clarification of Mr. Carter's policies, flew quietly last week to Athens, Ga. to consult with Dean Rusk, the former Secretary of State, who has been a personal adviser to Mr. Carter on foreign affairs. Mr. Rusk was able to say that he did not expect any dramatic changes in foreign policy once Mr. Carter took office.

Mr. Rusk, who served for eight years as Secretary, has not seemed to mind the increased attention paid him by the press, but when asked if he will return to Washington has a standard answer. "You can give odds of a million to one with Jimmy the Greek because one thing is certain: Under no circumstances will I accept a position in a new Administration. It's time for younger men to be given a chance."

Mr. Kissinger, who appears to enjoy teasing his aides and reporters about his future, has so far kept his plans to himself. Everyone expects him to sign a fat book contract and begin writing his own history of the foreign poli-cy of the Nixon-Ford years.

On Friday night, however, Mr. Kissinger was his usual bantering self when he ran into reporters. Coming out of a party at the Soviet Embassy marking the 59th anniversary of the Bolshevik Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger during a Cabinet meeting at the White House on Friday.

Revolution, he said, "I'm being considered for chief of protocol."

He told one reporter that "I'm looking for a job with the C.A.B. [Civil Aeronautics Board]." Later, at a dinner at the West German Embassy for Herbert van Karajan, conductor of the Berlin

Philarmonic, he was asked if he might be willing to stay on for a while with Mr. Carter. He ruled it out, saying, "I'd have to traple my security guard just to keep the job applicants away."

One of the early names on everyone's speculative list for the job of Secretary of State was George W. Bail, who was Under Secretary to Mr. Rusk for several years and who has been one of the ding critics of this Administration's foreign policy. But Mr. Ball's name was dropped from consideration because his views on a Middle East settlement ran afoul of American Jewish leaders who say they told Mr. Carter's advisers last summer of their opposition to him. It is, of course, possible that Mr. Carter will personally revive Mr. Ball's name, but there is downtry!

but this is doubtful. To some the involvement of domestic pressure groups in the choice of Secre-tary of State was reminiscent of John F. Kennedy's decision not to appoint J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas because of opposition from civil rights groups. The former Senator has maintained that he did not want to give up the chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee to move to Foggy Bottom, but the pressure was so strong that Mr. Kennedy never even asked Mr. Ful-

In the next few weeks messages will go out to all the 120-odd American ambassadors around the world reminding them that they will be expected to submit their resignations to Mr. Carter so that he can, if he wishes, replace them with his own men. Likewise, the Presidential appointees in the department, who include all the assistant secretaries in charge of regional bureaus taries in charge of regional bureaus, must offer to resign also. The ambassadors are predominantly career officers, with about 30 percent political. Two of the "politicals" have already asked for their resignations to be accepted immediately by Mr. Ford: Richard M. Helms, the former Director of Central Intelligence, now Ambassa-dor to Iran, and William B. Saxbe, the former Attorney General and Ohio

Senator, now Ambassador to India.

Although Mr. Kissinger has been justifiably charged with failing to take the State Department bureaucracy into his confidence, and proving foreign of his confidence, and running foreign af-fairs essentially with a tightly knit co-terie, he has chosen almost all his top and most trusted aides from the professional career service. This has won him-respect in Foggy Bottom. Thus, except for the Deputy Secretary, Charles W. Robinson, a Republican businessman, and the Under Secretary for Economic Affairs, William D. Rogers, a Democratic lawyer, all of the Kissinger "team" are career officers.

But because they have become so linked in the public eye with Mr. Kissinger, many plan to resign anyway. They include Lawrence S. Eagleburger and Winston Lord, his closest personal friends in the department. Others, like Helmut Sonnenfeldt, have not made up their minds. Some like Alfred L. Atherton, who heads the Near East and South Asian bureau, may be asked to remain for continuity.

The acid test of Mr. Carter's approach to foreign affairs in the view of many foreign service officers will be if he keeps to his campaign pledge to appoint "professionals" to key posts. It has been suggested that the term "professional" in Mr. Carter's interpretable tation may be more inclusive than that usually meant in Washington. Usually, a "professional" appointee means someone currently in the foreign service, but Mr.Carter might widen it to include academics and businessmen and former officers who have compe-tence in the field.

In a typical comment, the former Agri-culture Secretary, Fred Peart, now him-self a member of the House of Lords, described the Lords' earlier action to soft-en the bill as "overriding the will of the elected chamber." Heading the list was Dr. William A. It does not differentiate between individual and group practices. Thus it is not possible to tell if the fee paid went to one doctor with a small staff, one doctor with a small staff with the s in 1975. He operated three methadone clinics in Harlem. He has since closed the clinics, citing Government "harass-ment" and complex regulations.

Dr. Triebel was at or near the top of the list released last year, reflecting 1974 earnings, His income from the program for that year was said to be $456,156

Attempts to reach Dr. Triebel by tele-phone today proved futile. The H.E.W. list gave his address as 2 West 116th Dr. Triebel's name was also at the top Street. A William A. Triebel is listed in the New York City directory at 353 East 19th Street, but he did not return a call committee on Long Term Care of the Sen-ate Special Committee on Aging.

In that report, the subcommittee chairman, Frank E. Moss, Democrat of Utah, documented what be called substandard care in the so-called Medicaid mills in placed by a reporter.

H.E.W. released the 346-page report with the caveat that the amounts "should earned more than $100,000 last year, five not be construed as any evidence of them exceeding $400,000 in gross inwrongdoing." Almost all the New York State providers in the Moss report were on today's list.

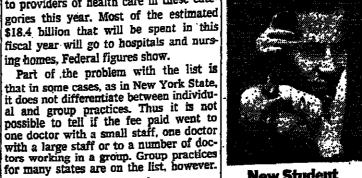

The release of the list was immediately attacked by Dr. James H. Sammons, executive vice president of the American Medical Association, as "nothing less than an attempt at guilt by innuendo." He said that many hard-working physicians who were the only physicians serving tens of thousands of people in slum areas would be made to look dishonest

A tax deductible retirement fund for key employees-with no headaches for you.

$1500 a year in an Individual Retirement Account Plan started for a 30 year old employee will give him $290,641* when he is 65-plus $132,715* if he elects to receive payment over 10 years-plus his Social Security—

The law permits companies without pension or profit sharing plans to fund tax-deferred Individual Retirement Accounts for any number of selected employees on a voluntary basis.

Each year—as a bonus to selected employees—you may contribute up to 15% of their annual salary (to a maximum of $1500) into a Lincoln Savings Bank IRA. The dollar amount or percentage of salary can vary from person to person and from year to year, at your discretion. You can even omit a contribution entirely. The employee can, if desired, pay the difference between your contribution and the legal maximum in any or all years.

The full amount of the IRA contribution is deductible from the employee's taxable income each year. The employee pays no taxes on his IRA fund or the interest it earns, until he retires between the ages of 59-1/2 and 70-1/2 when he will probably be in a lower tax bracket.

If you agree that assurance of a rich retirement is a great way to keep your best people on your payroll, just mail the coupon along with a list of employees you want to cover, their Social Security numbers and 1976 earnings. We'll send you all the necessary forms and instructions. Once you give us the go-ahead The Lincoln—will do the rest—including all the bookkeeping and preparation of annual statements for tax returns.

The facts are in. Right through the latest reporting period, August 1976, TWA has beaten American and United's on-time performance for the past 15 months between New York and Chicago.

These statistics are shown in CAB records for flights actually flown, and are based on percent of arrivals within 15 minutes of schedule.

At TWA, we've worked hard for our on-time record—and we intend to keep it. But don't take our word for it; take TWA to Chicago and see.

TWA has carry-on luggage compartments on every flight.

No matter which flight you take, you can take your luggage right on board with you because TWA has convenient carry-on luggage compartments on every plane we fly to Chicago.

So next time you take a business trip to Chicago, call your Travel Agent or Corporate Travel Department and put yourself on TWA. It's the best business flyer's airline in the business.

Being the best isn't everything. It's the only thing."

When you need a new car, one word from Chemical can make you a satisfied customer.

When you need a new car, you've got your own ideas of what kind of car you want. Because chances are, you've been wanting it for a long time.

Trouble is, new cars cost a lot of money. So do many used cars these days. And if you're like many car customers, you'll probably need some financial help before you get behind the wheel.

At Chemical Bank, we realize that your financial needs are as unique as the kind of car you want to drive. So when you make up your mind that you're not going to wait any longer, it's time to see us. If you qualify, we'll say "Yes" to the right kind of terms to satisfy your personal financial needs.

We'll even reserve your money for 90 days, so you'll have time to shop around for the best deal on the car you want. Come in and see us. We have people at more than 250 locations throughout the New York area who would like to make a satisfied customer out of you.

Mr. Newhouse, whose publishing and broadcasting holdings already include 22 daily newspapers, five magazines, six nalistic excellence, particularly if it is in television stations, four radio stations and 20 cable television systems, got control of Booth after outbidding the Times Mirror Company.

The Booth newspapers with a combined circulation of 506,000, are The Grand Rapids Press, The Flint Journal, The Kalamazoo Gazette, The Saginaw News, The Muskegon Chronicle, The Bay City Times, The Ann Arbor News and The Jackson Citizen Patriot. All are within 200 miles of Detroit. Parade magazine is distributed nationally by 111 newspapers and has an aggregate circulation of 19,033,000.

According to industry sources, the sale is an indication not that the Booth newspapers occupy a position of unusual journalist power or influence, but that such chains are considered an investor's

Another factor is that an industrial revolution is going on in American newspapers as printing methods that have been in effect for decades are being supplanted by new electronic technology, which is more efficient and less costly to operate. Printing facilities as well as newsrooms are being computerized. Television-like terminals are replacing typewriters and the editor's pen.

This all costs a great deal of money to install, and one of the attractions of the Booth newpapers is that they have converted to the new technology. The labor problems that arise when a news-paper wants to reduce its work force— the new technology requires less manpower-have been resolved.

However Booth's main attractiveness, according to industry sources, is that it is unusually well managed. This is regarded as a particularly important asset because the newspaper industry in general has tended to be slow to adopt modern management methods.

Management Procedures Modernized When James E. Sauter, Booth's 6-foot, 4-inch president was named chief operating officer in 1968, he found the profit margin deteriorating and the papers being run pretty much on what he called the "by golly basis." "At the end of the year," he said, "the accountants would add up the figures and say, By golly, That Sued to Oust Him look now we did last year?

He decided to institute a more businesslike approach in the company. He set up a three-day management seminar for top corporate officers and the editor and manager of each newspaper. The meeting was held in the former summer home of Edsel Ford, deep in the Michigan woods where there were no distractions and the executives had to sleep in dormitories. Mr. Sauter recalled that most of

Local Exposes Held Avoided

The Booth Newspapers, according to several newspaper analysts, are probably "better than most" and have put a great deal of effort into readership surveys. Other readers say that while the newspapers do a good job of reporting local news and supplying community information, they are careful not to rock the boat in their cities by running exposés of local political scandals or the like.

We sell heavily out-state in cities where the Booth newspapers are," said Neil Shine, managing editor of The Detroit Free Press, "and we often get calls from people telling us about something that is going on in the local government, and that the local papers just won't touch it."

times, local merchants usually continue to advertise to draw customers into their stores, while national retailers tend to cut back on advertising budgets.

This year has been very difficult for the Booth corporate off cers as they have watched their company go up for grabs between two publishing giants, the Newhouse organization and the Tims Mirror Company, which owns The Los Angeles Times, Newsday, The Dallas Times Herald and The Orange Coast Daily Pilot.

Chain Was Founded in 1893 The stock of the Booth newspapers, which were founded in 1893 when George Booth bought an interest in a small morning paper in Grand Rapids, was offered to the public in 1971. Mr. Newhouse bought 25 percent of the stock last Febru-ary. Then this fall the Times Mirror Company made an offer of $40 a share. (The stock had been selling at about $16 a share in January.) Mr. Newhouse countered with an offer of $47 a share, which the Booth directors accepted and the

"I plan to manage just as I have all along," Mr. Sauter said. "We have a long record of meeting the information needs of the communities where we publish, and I will insist that in the future we continue to strive for excellence."

Nuclear Power: No Green Light at the Polls

By GLADWIN HILL Spokesmen for the atomic power indus-try are suggesting that the rejection of nuclear regulatory proposals by voters in six states represents a "green light" for nuclear development.

A number of realities suggest, however, that this interpretation is on the euphoric side, and that realization of President Ford's 1974 plea for "200 more nuclear power plants by 1985" still faces an array of political, technical and economic ob Although the nuclear industry spen millions spreading the idea that Nov. 2 ballot propositions in Ohio, Montana, the Booth directors accepted and the competition was over.

Mr. Sauter and the Booth corporate officers noted that Mr. Newhouse had a reputation for letting his newspapers operate autonomously, so long as they returned a good profit.

Some 30 piants are now operating.

The Nov. 2 ballot propositions, and one similarly rejected in California on June 8, attempted to address this question. They set forth a rather complex proposal conditioning future nuclear development upon approval by state legislatures only returned a good profit. after demonstration that various safety criteria bad been met.

It was this particular proposal, assum ing citizens understood what they were voting for, that was in question, not ei-ther an unconditional halt or an unconditional go-ahead for nuclear power.

Situation in California

This distinction was amply illustrated in California. Voters there rejected the ballot proposal only after the State Legislature enacted three quite restrictive law: on nuclear development that tended to make the ballot proposition superfluous. Perhaps the most significant thing about the seven citizen-initiated propos als—something calculated to give the nuclear industry pause—is that they oc-curred at all. Atomic power is supposed to be under strict Federal regulation. The emergence of the ballot proposals was clearly a broad citizen expression of "no confidence" in the Federal regulation, or in the industry's implementation of Federal requirements.

Moreover, unlike most voting, which is like a winner-take-all marbles game, the fact that a majority of voters in seven states rejected a certain regulatory proposal manifestly does nothing to alter the beliefs of those on the losing side that better regulation is needed.

campaign fund that furnished public fi-nancing for a large part of the 1976 Presidential campaign, the first subsidized contest in American political history, wound up the year with a surplus of near-ly $23 million.

This figure and the willingness of tax-payers to rebuild the fund with $1 checkoffs on their income tax returns have encouraged supporters of campaign sub-sidies for senators and representatives that enough money may be available to finance such a program by 1980.

All told, the 1976 Presidential campaign

During the four years that an optional $1 checkoff has been listed on personal income tax forms as a means of financing the campaign fund, an even total of $95 million has been set aside for this pur-

Officials of the Federal Election Commission believe it unlikely that further demands of any size will be made on the fund now that the election is over. Presidential candidates representing minority parties could claim retroactive subsidies only if they got 5 percent or more of the national popular vote.

Eugene J. McCarthy, the former Demo-cratic Senator from Minnesota, who ran as an independent, got only about 1 percent of the vote, and a half-dozen other candidates trailed him.

Lyndon P. LaRouche, the candidate of matching funds, contending that money he raised before the party convention in mid-October should be treated in the same way as contributions made to major party candidates during the primaries.

The commission has his request under consideration, but the amount of money involved, about $125,000, would be a relalively negligible drain on the campaign fund if it was authorized.

Primary matching funds, under the new campaign law, go to candidates who are able to raise $5,000 or more in each of 20 states in amounts of $100 or less. After they reach this threshold of qualification, the first $100 of each private contribution, past or future, is matched by a federal subsidy payment.

Checkoff payments into the campaign fund have run between $30 million and $35 million a year for the last two years.

The maximake money for himself. mum cost of that program, which in-volved matching funds for the general election only, was estimated by its spon-sor, Representative Phillip Burton of California, at $40 million.

The Congressman said he believed the actual cost of such subsidies might run only about $20 million because not all Senate and House races involve two candidates and a number of candidates probably would choose the option of private financing and thus avoid any overall campaign spending ceiling.

Even if Mr. McCarthy had got 5 percent or more of the vote last week, he probably would not have been eligible for any retroactive campaign subsidy. The elec-tion commission ruled in October that the movement supporting his candidacy did not constitute a political party and, under the law, only parties can receive such payments.

Both Congressmen were friends of Park Tong Sun, who is known in the United States as Tongsun Park, the Korean busi-nessman suspected of being a secret lobbyist, and were reported to have helped him establish himself in Washington. They were also said to have instructed him on which Congressmen were important to Korean interests by their committee assignments.

In addition, the Korean sources, Who were not further identified for fear of reprisals by the intelligence agency, told Federal investigators that $500,000 to $1 million a year was spent for bribes, travel, gifts and entertainment of Congressmen from 1971 to 1975. Starting Point in 1970

The year 1970, according to the Korean sources, appears to have been the starting point for the concerted effort to influence All told, the 1976 Presidential campaign has cost $72.3 million in public funds so far: $24.3 million in matching funds paid to Presidential primary candidates of both major parties, $4.4 million for the full cost of the two nominating conventions and $43.6 million for the full cost of the Democratic and Republican general election campaigns.

Mr. Howe took his own life after other Korean leaders. They viewed that became suspicious when Mr. Park tried publicity about a vacation trip for him as a lessening of the American commit-ment to help defend South Korea from North Korea, a commitment that ultimately depends on votes in Congress. Connected with that was a pledge from the Nixon Administration for a $1.5 billion program to modernize the Korean military forces. The Koreans realized that it would depend on Congressional appropriations. As things turned out, Congress has been slow to vote the money.

In addition, American sentiment against the United States Labor Party, has filed a claim with the election commission for matching funds contradict the war in Vietnam was running high at that time and the Koreans feared that would affect American williams. would affect American willingness to de

That was also the year in which President Park began to tighten his grip on power, a plan that culminated in 1972 when he had the Constitution revised to enable him to exercise unlimited power for as long as he wished.

Many foreign governments try to influence the American Congress but usually by diplomatic persuasion or by using registered lobbyists. In this case, however, according to the Korean sources and Americans with access to intelligence re-ports, the Koreans relied heavily on their intelligence agency and its possibly illegal methods of bribery and covert lobbying. The Foreign Agents Registration Act requires that all persons, except diplomats, representing a foreign government here register with the Justice Depart-ment. Records there show that none of If they continue at this level for the next four years, the fund should have close to $150 million available to help finance the 1980 election.

Even assuming an increase by Congress in general election subsidies, this would indicate a surplus of perhaps $60 million over and above the cost of a Bresident of the next those under investigation have registered. The Korean case has added importance as a result of American military commitments on that divided peninsula. With 40,000 troops in that tense area, the United States could be involved in hostifities on short notice.

Summary of Actions Taken by the United States Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8—The Supreme Court took the following actions today:

ABORTION With no Justice recording a dissent, the Court refused to issue a stay that would block payment of Medicaid funds for elective abortions until the Court has had a chance to rule on the constitutionality of the new statute that forbids the use of Medicaid funds for this number A. Except District for this purpose. A Federal District Court in Brooklyn ruled last month that the law was unconstitutional and ordered continued payment of the funds.
(Buckley v. McRae, No. 346).

(News Article, Page one)

The Court also refused a request by Connecticut's Commissioner of Social Services for a stay that would block enforcement, pending appeal, of another lower Federal court order that invalidated Connecticut's ban against use of welfare funds for elective abortions. The Justices have already agreed to review this order in their current term. (Maher V. Roe, No. 75-1440 (A-3719.)

(News Article, Page one)
ANTITRUST

The Court agreed to review an Illinois case that raises a standing-to-sue issue: Whether Illinois, as the purchaser of a building that was built of concrete block, has standing to bring a civil antitrust suit alleging price fixing in the sale of the concrete block to its initial purchaser. The lower court decided the question in favor of Illinois, (Illinois Brick Co. v. Illinois, No. 76-404).

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT The Court agreed to review the case of a Florida man sentenced to death after his conviction for the murder of his daughter. The murder occurred be-fore the enactment of Florida's new death penalty statute, upheld by the Supreme Court last July, but the trial took place after the enactment of the new law and the defendant was sentenced under it. He contends in his appeal that the imposition of the penalty thus violates the constitutional ban against "ex post facto" laws. (Dobbert v. Florida, No. 76-5306).

The Court also agreed to review the case of a man sentenced to death in 1974 under Louisiana's death penalty law, for the murder of a policeman. The Supreme Court struck down the Louisiana capital punishment law last July, the Court's review thus presumably will involve the noncapital issues the defendant raised in his appeal. They are: Whether the defense was entitled to make its own scientific study of the alleged murder weapon before trial; whether the trial judge should have declared a mistrial after the defendant had taken the witness stand and the prosecutor had sought to impeach his credibility by asking about offenses by the defendant when he was a juvenile. (Robert v. Louisiana, No. 76-5206).

ELECTIONS Without hearing arguments on the matter and without issuing an opinion, the Court affirmed a lower Federal court judgment ordering reapportion-ment of certain Congressional districts in Tennessee. The lower court based its decision on 1970 Federal census figures. It said that courts in such cases were not necessarily confined to Federal decennial census figures but that they would control where there was no clear evidence that they were wrong and that other figures were valid. Jus-tices William H. Rehnquist and John Pani Stevens disagreed with the majority's action, saying that they would have heard arguments on the case. (Republican Party of Shelby County v. Dixon, No. 76-65).

ENVIRONMENT Following the advice of Solicitor General Robert H. Bork, the Court refused to hear a challenge to the construction of a nuclear power plant to be built on the southern shore of Lake Michigan in Indiana, or land bordering the Indiana Dunes National Lakeshore. (Porter County Chap-ter of the Izaak Walton League of America, Inc. v. Nuclear Regulatory Comm., No. 76-291).

The Atomic Energy Commission, now the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, authorized the issuance of a construction permit for a 685-megawatt plant, finding that the plant's impact on the adjoining lakeshore would be insub-stantial. The United States Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit initially set aside approval of the permit on the ground the A.E.C. had not followed its own guidelines for the location of plants. However, the Supreme Court reversed that finding, and, subsequent-ly, the Seventh Circuit ruled that the commission had authority to issue the license. It was this latter ruling that the Court today declined to review. Justice Stevens did not participate in

FREE SPEECH

Accepting a case involving the New Accepting a case involving the New Jersey township of Willimgboro, the Court agreed to decide whether it is constitutional for a community to prohibit "for sale," and "sold" signs in front of houses if the purpose of the ban is to maintain integrated housing patterns and prevent panic selling. Willingsboro adopted such an ordinance in 1974. A Federal District Court struck down the ordinance as an infringement down the ordinance as an infringement of free speech rights but a Federal appeals court reversed. (Linemark Associates, Inc., v. Township of Willingboro, No. 76-357).

LABOR

Again following Solicitor General Bork's advice, the Court agreed to re-view a Maryland case involving the possible circumstances in which states may refuse to give benefits from their cooperative state-Federal aid program for families with dependent children The basic question is whether the Sec-retary of Health, Education and Wel-fare may permit states to deny this aid, either when the parent is out of work because of a labor dispute or is out of work in circumstances that disqualify him under state law for unemployment pay. (Batterton v. Francis, No. 75-1181).

JUDGES

The Court declined to review an order by the United States Court of Appeals for the Tenth Circuit that removed a Federal district judge, Chief Judge Wilis W. Ritter, from presiding over a criminal antitrust case brought by the Federal Government. The appeals court had acted at the request of the Government, and had found that "in light of the total facts" there was not a reasonable likelihood that the case would be tried "with the impartiality that litigants have a right to expect." Here again, the high court, in denying review, followed the course that Mr. Bork had suggested Justice Stevens did not participate in the case. (Olson farms, Inc. v. U.S., No. 76-342).

MOTOR VEHICLES

Over a sharp dissent by Justice Brennan, joined by Justice Marshall, the Court refused to review a lower Federcourt decision that reluctantly upheld Indiana's "guest statute"—the law that, generally, bars the guest passen-ger in an automobile from sumg his or her host, the driver, for damages in an automobile accident. The lower court said that it considered the law unconstitutional but that it felt bound to uphold the law because the Supreme Court in 1974 had dismissed a challenge to a similar Utah guest statute. (Sidle v. Majors, No. 76-309.)

Presumably, though, the Court relied at least in part on the arguments of the Solicitor General, in view of the Government's role as defender of the statute. It is unclear when the Court will rule on the merits of the controversy or how long today's order will be in effect.

Before the new statute was enacted, the Court had agreed to review, in the the Court had agreed to review, in the his agency that the agency would continue the current court year, a case involving a ue to finance costs of abortions on the restriction that the state of Connecticut same basis as costs of pregnancy and had already imposed on the use of funds childbirth. for elective abortions. waiting for an appeal of the Brooklyn court decision on the new statute. Or, it could await the appeal and decide both together. Or it could postpone the Con-necticut case while it decided the new Brooklyn case

Whatever the Court decides to do will probably take several months, Its action today means that throughout that period Medicaid funds will continue to be available for abortions, at least to the same FREEnt as they are available for women who choose to continue their pregnancies. Today's dispute is part of the aftermath of the Supreme Court's 1973 decision straking down state statutes that made on a Florida case that is part of the aftermath decision established that the conmath of another of the Justices'slandmark er to continue or to terminate a pregnancy. But the decision, was not self-enforcing. It did not specify a right to the means of obtaining an abortion.

Following that ruling, various states imposed restrictions on abortions, including the limitation, in some states, on the use of public facilities and funds for abor-

Legal Questions Are Posed

For women on welfare, these limitations mean as a practical matter that abortion is unavailable, or difficult to obtain. They thus also mean that well-to-do-women have an easier time getting abortions than do indigent women.

Legally, these practical effects pose several questions: Whether the denial of public facilities and funds for abortions denies indigent women their constitutional right, established by the 1973 ruling, to decide whether or not to complete their pregnancies, and whether the disparate treatment of rich and poor denies the poor equal protection of the laws. Two were filed in New York one by the corporation and one by a New York Medicaid recipient named Cora McRae, who had decided to have an abortion; by Planned Parenthood, and by a doctor, Irwin B. Teran.

Judge John F. Dooling of Federal District Court ruled on the issue Oct. 22. In his order he directed the Secretary of H.E.W. to notify regional directors of

In addition to Senator Buckley, those seeking the stay included Representative Hyde, Senator Jesse A. Helms and a woman named Isabella M. Pernicone, as "guardian" for the interests of unborn children.

In other action today, the Supreme Court announced it would hear argument right to privacy included the rulings—their decision last July holding that the death penalty is not inherently rulings-their decision last July holding unconstitutional, at least for murder, and specifically sustaining the capital punishment laws of Florida, Georgia and Texas. The issue in the case the Court accepted today is whether it was constitutional, in view of the ban against "ex post facto"laws, to sentence someone to death under the Florida statute when the trial and sentencing occurred after the statute; had been enacted, but the crime for which the defendant was convicted took place before enactment of the statute.

In the case, which involved a man's murder of his daughter, the jury recom-mended life imprisonment, but the judge decided on the death penalty. The defendant contends that under the law in effect at the time of the murder, before the new death penalty law had been enacted, the jury's recommendation would have been followed.

Thus, he contends, application of the new statute to him violates the ban against ex post facto laws. That ban forbids laws that change the penalty for KRUGERRANDS a crime and make the penalty more se-vere than the penalty in effect at the

What does one buy instead?.

If you aspire to anything more than "Chopsticks" and "Country" Gardens," you really have very little choice but Steinway. There are less expensive pianos.

But if you've compared prices you know that model for model the difference in price isn't as big as you'd expected.

And the less expensive piano is also by definition less piano. It doesn't have exclusive Steinway features such as Diaphragmatic9-Soundboard and Accelerated Action which enhance both the sound and sensitivity of the instrument.

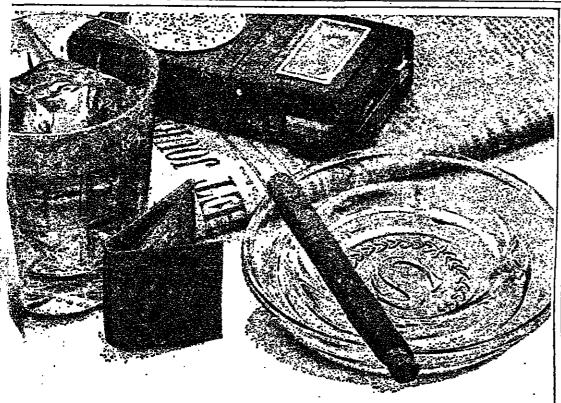

It doesn't have Steinway's Hexagrip wrestplank (pinblock), Tubular A Metallic Action Frame, and compression-wired hammers.

And most of the difference you could save by buying the less expensive piano disappears in depreciation the moment it's delivered. The inescapable fact is that if you are seriously interested in buying a fine plano, you can't afford to buy less than a Steinway.

The Caribbean vacation that begins with a private limousine at your door

And that's just the beginning. The people who created Sandy Lane have done it again. They outdid themselves in creating La Toc, the 100-acre luxury resort on undiscovered St. Lucia.

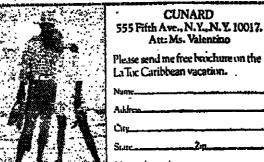

Your first taste of La Toc style begins at your own doorstep (if you live within 50 miles of JFK), as the chauffeur hands you into your private limousine for the ride to the airport. That should give you an idea of what to expect from La Toc. You'll swim in a pool so large, it has its own island. Or laze on half a mile of crescent beach. There's a private 9-hole golf course. Lighted tennis courts. A British-trained staff. A Continental kitchen. And nightly entertainment.

One week, $730 to $760, including roundtrip air fare on direct BWIA flights, limousine to and from JFK, transfers in St. Lucia, balconied room with ocean view and all breakfasts and dinners at La Toc. Private villas, $630 to $660 (meals extra). ## Notes on People

It may have been Muhammad All's best performance, and he didn't even give it at a weigh-in, in the ring or in front of the cameras for the movie biography he is now filming in Houston. Early yesterday, two officers investi-gating a report of a shooting saw a man running down the street and stopped him. It turned out to be Mr. Ali, out for his morning jog. The officers invited him to the jail to see if he could fool other policemen by acting like an arrested drunk. The ham in Mr. Ali couldn't resist, and so he went along and put on a realistic performance, staggering around and yelling. When it was done, he signed auto-graphs and asked modestly, "Aren't I

The poet Emily Dickinson attended Mount Holyoke College in South Hadley, Mass., in 1847 but left too soon to receive a degree. So perhaps it was fitting that she be honored, along with the actress who has spurred renewed interest in her works in recent months, at Mount Holyoke's Founder's Day ceremonies Sunday Julie Harris, who is touring in the one-woman show based on Miss Dickinson's works, "The Belle of Amherst," was presented an honorary Doctor of Fine Arts degree and hailed as "living proof that great acting requires not only talent and ininspiration but dedicated intellectual sensitivity.

Josephine Baker, the late entertainer who won fame wearing only a few strategically placed bananas, was honored Sunday night at a tribute cosponcored by two of the world's best-dress-ed women, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis and Princes Grace of Monaco. The Princess wasn't on hand for the affair at the Metropolitan Opera House, and neither was Muhammad Ali, as promised. But many notables were, including Myrna Loy, Eubia Blake, Mayor and Mrs. Beame and Ingrid Bergman. The $15 to $5,000-a-ticket gala was for the benefit of Variety Clubs International.

The millionaire pop-rock star Mick Jagger, leader of the Rolling Stones, went to court yesterday to keep Christine Shrimpton, a former girlfriend, from disclosing contents of letters he wrote to her when they were close. Mr. Jagger already has a temporary injunction against Miss Shrimpton's selling the letters for publication, and he wants to make it permanent. He also asked a London court to order that the letters be returned. Mr. Jagger's romance with Miss Shrimpton, vounger sister of the model Jean Shrimpton, predated his marriage in 1971 to the former Bianca Perez Norena de Macias.

Arthur Fiedler, conductor of the Boston Pops, last night received the 11th annual Morality in Media Award at a dinner at the Sheraton-St. Regis Hotel in New York. The national interfaith organization, which works to stop the traffic in pornography, gave Mr. Fiedler its award "because he has brought the musical excellence of the Boston Pops into millions of American homes, elevating the level of all media in which he has performed." Also honored at the dinner were Police Commissioner Michael J. Codd and Fire Commissioner John T. O'Hagan, who received special

The French philosopher of existentialism, Jean-Paul Sartre, has made it a practice to disdain all proffered distinctions, including the Nobel Prize, but he has now accepted an honorary doctorate from the Hebrew University of Jerusalem. #### Three Israelis In Yuval Trio Show Rapport

By JOHN ROCKWELL

The Yuval Trio, which appeared Sunday night at the 92d Street Young Men's-Young Women's Hebrew Associ-ation, is a piano trio of native-born Israelis-Jonathan Zak, the planist; Uri Pianka, the concertmaster of the Israel Philharmonic, and Simca Heled, that orchestra's principal cellist.

What with solo careers-Mr. Heled's especially — and orchestral commitments, the trio hardly tours and records continuously. But it plays together often enough to have developed a most engaging runsical expects.

gether often enough to have developed a most engaging musical rapport.

That rapport was most in evidence during Dvorak's "Dumky" Trio (Op. 90). This buoyant if rather lightweight assortment of folk dances and sweeping metodies got just the right blend of extroverted passion and inward-backing sensitivity from the musicians looking sensitivity from the musicians. And their intuitively exact unanimity in matters of phrasing was delight.

Elsewhere—and even, periodically, in the Dvorak—the only passing problem was Mr. Pianka's bowing. The violinist's intonation was always event.

was Mr. Planka's dowing. The violinist's intonation was always exact. But his tone sometimes missed the ideal sweetness (even though elsewhere it lacked nothing in that regard), and here and there he would misplay a note just look accurate to give momentary dislong enough to give momentary discomfort. This was most a problem in the opening Mozart Trio in B flat (K. 502). But it should be stressed that even here this was merely a ripple on an otherwise untroubled surface.

Both Mr. Zak and Mr. Heled played irreproachably, and when Raphael Hillyer joined them for the viola part in Brahms's Piano Quartet in C minor (Op. 60), it was almost as if held (Op. 60), it was almost as if he had been playing with the Israelis for years. The Op. 60 is not one of Brahms's most immediately captivating works. But the foursome made a bracing case of it.

Ballet: Joffrey's American Dream

Troupe Concentrates on Works by U.S. Composers, Closing a Good Season With an Effortless Style

The Joffrey Bailet completed its 20th anniversary season at the City Center 55th Street Theater on Sunday night. For such a young company a 20th anniversary seems very early, yet the facts are there. The foundation of this great company was laid 20 years ago by half a dozen dancers, a truck and a hope. It was, and is, an American

The past season was a Bicentennial tribute to American choreography, and the repertory, most unlike the usual Joffrey cross section, consisted solely of works by American choreographers. It has been a good season for the dancers-despite an accumulation of injuries at the end-but perhaps less of a good season creatively. Yet the company looks in great shape, and its final weekend, until its new holiday season in December, had an effortless

Even at this late stage, partly through injury, there were a few cast changes. At the Saturday matinee, Ann Marie de Angelo and William Whitener gave a cheerfully Western rendering of George Balanchine's "Square Dance" (one notices that Mr. Balanchine counts as an American choreographer, whereas it seems that Antony Tydor whereas it seems that Antony Tudor does not), and Lisa Bradley made a tentative yet passionate debut as Emilia in "The Moor's Pavane." One would have expected Miss Bradley to have been one of nature's Desdemonas. and, luckily for the company, one would have been wrong.

In Mr. Balanchine's "Tchaikovsky Pas de Deux." Denuis Poole made his debut partnering the lovely, and much improved, Denise Jackson, Mr. Poole was good without being brilliant in a role where brilliance in the only mark of acceptance. He should look to his feet, as should some other dancers in the company. They do not happen to be pointed—at least in a general way. For classic dancers, this is a serious defect-tantamount to cowardice in an

In Agnes de Mille's "Rodeo," Paul Sutherland gave his first and presumably last performance as the Head Wrangler. He was manly, noble and dignified. The following afternoon he danced in Jerome Robbins's "Interplay," and this, I understand, was to be his last stage appearance with the company. From now on he will be a

Mr. Sutherland has been a great asset to the company, and indeed to American dance in general. It is rather sad to see him retire, for almost from the beginning, if intermittently, he has been most important to the development of the Joffrey Ballet. Yet it is good to know that his brilliance, his knowledge, his sheer expertise will continuingly be at the service of the Joffrey tradition. It is also nice to know that he bowed out, still young, and still at his best. And, if he needs to take the hidden transfer to the service of the to take the odd guest engagement, he

For the Joffrey company itself it must have been a fun weekend. People were scattered down 55th Street hopefully trying to buy returns for sold-out houses. The company will be back around the December holidays.

"Belshazzar's Feast" is about 45 pears old now. It once was extremely popular, and has held its own better than such more highly touted scores as, say, Honegger's "King David." It is the work of a skilled, conservative composer, with strong melodic ele-ments, a brave sound and some brisk choral writing.

choral writing.

The baritone solist was David Ward, perched high among the choristers. He sang with a good deal of vitality and command. Naturally the Chicago Symphony Chorus handled its end with complete finesse.

But the star was Sir Georg, who brought everything together in a blaz-ing eruption of sound. He is not only one of the best musicians around; he also can be a terrific virtuoso con-ductor when he wants to be, and he wanted to very much last night. "Bel-shazzar's Feast" came forth in a prosnazzar's reast came forth in a pro-pulsive, exciting manner, but always under perfect control. One doubts if the Walton score has even received a more brilliant performance anywhere.

KATHLEEN CARROLL, N.Y. DAILY NEWS

By PAUL GOLDBERGER Special to The New York Times

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va.—Stanford White, whose buildings epitomized the free use of historical styles in the late 19th century, is usually the hero of preservation efforts. But here at the University of Virginia, he is the villain. The reason is that White redesigned Appraisal the Rotunda, the central building of the Thomas Jefferson-designed cam-pus here, after an 1895 fire destroyed Jefferson's interior. For years the Rotunda was, thus, more a White building than a Jefferson

Then, in the mid-1950's, Prof. Frederick D. Nichols, the architectural historian and Jefferson scholar, started a campaign to restore the building to its Jeffersonian form. Persuading the university's board and finding money, including a Department of Housing and Urban Development grant, took years, but the restoration the university now has what might be described as an unreal Jefferson building instead of a real Stanford White one. For the White design had to be demolished to permit the re-creation of the Jefferson one. and there were some grumblings to the effect that, whatever the merits of "Mr. Jefferson," the university's founder, as an architect. they did not justify the demolition of a Stanford White building in favor of what is, everyone admits, a somewhat conjectural re-creation of the Jefferson design.

Now that the rebuilding is com-plete, most of White's defenders, including Joseph Bosserman, dean of the School of Architecture here, have made their peace with it, but the question the project poses still remains—when a building has one layer of history covering up another, which should take priority?

The University of Virginia as built to Jefferson's designs in 1817-27 is, quite possibly, the finest group of public buildings in the United States. It is a vision of classical order. The Rotunda, a brick model at half-diameter of the mitories, Five larger buildings are set at uneven intervals along each side of the colonnade; these are faculty residences, and each is designed to illustrate a different classical order.

The buildings are sited on a ridge, and Jefferson intended the fourth side of the rectangle that his buildings form to be left open to the view of the valley and the mountains beyond. It was closed with another building by the university's nemesis, Stanford White ("I told my students in the 1960's that if they felt like protesting they should blow up that building," Professor Nichols said). But in spite of the closed vista, the open space between the colonnades remains a remarkably restful outdoor room, perfectly proportioned and skillfully balanced between a sense

MONTCLAIR, N.J., Nov. 8-First a note about the Whole Theater Company, which is one of New Jersey's comparatively few profess tional theaters. It is a theatrical cooperative of Equity members, most of them married couples, who we chosen to live and work here. It has plans for a new home, but at present it works out of what it describes as a "minispace" at Mont-clair's First Baptist Church, Yet somehow audiences are building, possibly merely because the com-pany's quality is apparent.

This weekend I saw the company's production of Tennessee Williams's "The Rose Tattoo." which is also playing next week-

On the face of it, this was a risky undertaking for the fledgling com-pany, which had never before per-

end. It was a flamboyant, rumbustious account of Mr. Williams's strange slapstick comedy with a heart. One of the reasons Mr. Williams is one of our century's major playwrights is his untidy unpredictability. It is an untidy, unpredictable century, and Mr. Williams is in there pitching, reflecting it like

You would never really expect Mr. Williams to write a Sicilian farce, yet as he has written it, you might expect it to have been shaped with an almost sentimental compassion. It is. 'The Rose Tattoo" is a grotesque play that happens to work: an impossible travesty of an Italian comedy that Mr. Williams keeps on an even keel by the perceptiveness of his writing and his acceptance of risk. Take the situation. Serafina lives in a Gulf Coast village, populated chiefly by Sicilians, between New Orleans and Mobile. She loves her truck-driver husband, who deals officially in bananas and, unofficially, in drugs. Her husband is killed and she becomes desolate. She learns that this saint of a love has been unfaithful to her, and then suddenly another lover ap-pears, another Sicilian truck driver, who has the body of her husband and the face of a clown,

Mr. Williams writes farce with a purpose. Of course, as in so many plays he goes too far, but how much better he is than a play-wright who never, in a year of Fridays, could go far enough. Mr. Williams exults in the conditions of humanity, and here he is exult-ing in the craziness of physical

It is a funny, silly play, unlike most of the playwright's works, and yet with the same effortless craftsmanship, the same careless care. The encounters between the wronged and battered Serafina and her clown-lover. Alvaro, are gor-geously absurd, but deadly right. They are anti-Romantic, but given with a Romantic understanding.

This New Jersey company which I had not seen before— seems in good faith. Its stage is tiny, yet here the set designer, Ernie Schenk, made the most of it, and the actors, while variable, gave a total impression of command. Yes, you could see a better version of "The Rose Tattoo" than in a New Jersey church. But this was and measure the word-infinitely good enough. It worked. The joy. pathos and odd passion of the play merged and floated.

In part this was very much be-cause of Olympia Dukakis's performance as Serafina, who was exaggerated and yet controlled, absurd and yet rich. It was the total performance that both dared and achieved.

Stefan Feters, a good enough actor. was not perfect as the new truck-driver lover—his absurdices lacked something in conviction. This is what one must expect with a true repertory company-some roles will be more difficult to cast than others. Yet on the whole the company looked very good and very confident, and obviously a great deal of this was the result of the greathead at the confident. the evenhanded direction of Apollo

The Whole Theater Company has some way to go before the eternity of glory, but I enjoyed myself. This is an honest, happy endeavor, full of talent, and, it is hoped, bringing art to an area where art is not all that apparent. It is a good company doing a good job—when it gets to its new theater, we will expect better—but what it is is already quality enough.

It flaws there are plenty of stiffness and silliness and only one outstanding tune—are real enough. But so are the violent, lonely passions that animate Eleazar's music. There is something of Otello here it is no accident that Giovanni Martinelli excelled in both roles.

> A particular revelation was the power of "Rachel, quand du Seigneur." the opera's one famous ex-cerpt, in the context of the whole. Eleazar's lament that he will himself be the instrument of his daughter's death arrives on the hecls of a seething duct in which he refuses to divulge information that would save her. The psychology of the moment has some depth and the urgency of the musical and dramatic flow is thrilling stuff. No wonder Richard Tucker dreamed of resurrecting "La Juive" at the

After Pants, Bloomers Are Kicky Fashion

By BERNADINE MORRIS

Straight-leg pants, the kind that finally gained admittance to the best restaurants within the last decade, are far less prominent on fashion runways in both Paris and New York now.

It isn't exactly that they've gone out of fashion. It's simply that designers feel that perhaps women own enough of them or that there's little they can do to improve them.

"Trousers, a shirt or sweater and a raincoat—they're classics," said Yves Saint Laurent, "They'li go on forever. Ten years from now they will be as good as they are today."

So don't push the panic button. Pants are still O.K.

After Amelia Bloomer, the suffragette who wore them.

Rosita Missoni—she works in Italy—says they're Zouave pants when they're one length, harem pants when they're pulled down to the ankle.

Giorgio Sant'Angelo ranks them among his peasant fantasies. He says they're nondenominational — anyone can wear them.

All four designers, representing dif-ferent approaches to fashion in differ-ent countries, have come up with the same idea: voluminous pants, gathered freeing them from the tyranny of petticoats and corsets. Now for spring, 1977, there's a brand new crop of bloomers, in any fabric you can think of, from canvas to

What they offer is a chance to be different. In a few months, there will be enough around not to seem bizarre. As play clothes, they're more frivo-lous and many think more flattering than Bermuda shorts.

But with sober versions available, they are likely to be seen around town during the day, with conventional trappings like sweaters and shirts.

A Tongue-in-Chic Boutique Revives the 60's

By ANGELA TAYLOR

High-heeled boots with pointed toes in fluorescent colors tagged at $110. Crazy? You bet. It's the sheer outrageousness of the boots that sold 100 pairs last month at the Fiorucci boutique. They're meant to be worn with $38 jeans, a big mohair sweater in wild colors and a gold plastic tote bag emblazoned with the company logo. It would seem too soon to get nostalgic about the rocking 60's. But that's what the shop at 125 East 59th Street is all about. It's a reincarnation of the vouth explosion of the last decade—loud rock music bouncing off the walls hung with tongue-in-cheek posters, a counter for theatrical makeup, another for cookies. And mostly lively clother for cookies. And, mostly, lively clothes designed for and beamed at the young —which over-30 oldsters also buy.

Informal Attire

The throwback to the Mod-ish 60's isn't an accident, explained Elio Fiorucci, a shy man of 41, who wears jeans and a tieless shirt even to serious business meetings. His family owned a chain of shoe stores in Milan when he visited London in 1967. The city was at the height of its Mod fling, and Carnaby Street and the Kings Road were meeta to the young.

"London was exciting," Mr. Fiorucci recalls. "It wasn't just a fashion change, but a difference in the quality of life." He was particularly fascinated with the liveliness and variety of the Biba boutiques.

"I wanted to bring the London scene to Milan," he continued. That led to the first Fiorucci boutique, which sold designs from Biba, Mr. Freedom and some of the French yé-yé designers. However, despite the creativity of the young designers, the shoddiness of fabric and manufacture killed the Carnaby Street craze in a few years.

Ideas Were Lacking

Elio Fiorucci persisted even after he found his sources unreliable. "Italy had good fabrics and manufacturing skill," he said. What it lacked were the young ideas that had made the Mods so stimulating.

seven young designers working in Milan, and it scouts other European sources for salable merchandise. With some capital from Standa, Italy's variety stores (which in turn, are part of the large Mantedison conglomerate), Fiorucci has two boutiques in Milan, a franchise in London, and it wholesales to shops around the world.

The handsome, two-floor shop on 59th Street is Fiorucci's first American venture. Elio Fiorucci describes it as "a potpourri of everything that makes life fun and interesting." Recently that included Helmut Newton's book of sexy photography, with the author himself autographing copies. And a new line of children's clothes labeled Fioruccino.

of children's clothes labeled Fioruccino. Plus bicycles, posters or anything the shop considers fun.

The Milan factory started with dresses, sweaters and shirts, but blue jeans have become the mainstay of its business. Mr. Fiorucci says his company has bought $1 million worth of American denim, which has been given Italian fit. There are six styles in the jeans, which retail for $35 and $38.

The shop here opened with 10,000 pairs of the jeans, and they have been snapped up not only by young women, such as Marisa Berenson and her sister Berry Perkins, but over-30's, such as

Fads of the Young

The shop picks up all the new young fads. Multi-zippered mechanics' coveralis. More overalls, with baggy seats like the ones house painters wear. Joan Crawford ankle-strap shoes. Hundreds of T-shirts and sweaters with whimsical appliqués or the company logo at the bottom of the back. Gold platform shoes and tote bags. Bright-colored plastic rainboots with high wedge heels. Lots of corduroy, including skirts with a buttoned flap, like sailor pants.

A New View From Venice

The Roberta di Camerino designs present another Italian view. They come from Venice, their price tags run higher ($600 for a polyester dress, for instance) and they are more likely to appeal to the international country club set.

The trompe l'oeil design for which this house is famous took something of a back seat to solid colors in yesterday's showing of the spring and summer styles. When they appeared toward the end of the show, the audience perked up.

Highlights of this group: Colored prints on white dresses, looking like embroidery. Border prints of brilliant flowers, somewhat Spanish. Two wavy prints combined in one dress. The Weird World of City Pets

By FRANCIS X, CLINES

The hedgehog made a cautious, quivering circuit of the surface of the dining room table, a small, prickly muff of affection in the eyes of its owner, who carefully shepherded it from falling off the edge because love on the West Side is never having to say whoops to your

The creature was eyed just as carefully by a visitor, Robin Lehman, a 9 film maker whose documentary on African wildlife won an Academy Award and who now is preparing to zoom in on New Yorkers and their

He is painstaking in his initial re-search, checking each of the pet tales as they come, vowing the utmost secrecy to his sources who, more often than not, are violating the law by having such things as monkeys' skunks and raccoons in their apartments. These are repetitious sightings by now, and Mr. Lehman needs a lion or some other large cat to spice up this film menagerie. He found a couger, but it was not really a city pet, merely a show-business transient kept caged in an alleyway for two hours each night waiting to make an entrance in "The Magic Show."

"I've got kind of whispers about a tion," he said, offering no details.

There was a lion several weeks ago fiving here as a pet, but Dr. Alan Beck got wind of it first, and as the city's chief health administrator for animal affairs, he had it removed, as required by law.

Dr. Beck heard of a bobcat coming in from a supplier in Florida, too, and fastily tracked it. But he arrived too late, he said, because it had already disappeared in death at its destination in Chinatown. "It was some sort of ritual thing." he added, stressing that it had not been offered to the public as food.

Mr. Lehman has met Dr. Beck, and the film maker would love to know what the doctor knows about which animal may be living where in the city. But he stays mindful of not compromising his sources and is understandably of all the creatures he has seen so far. Mr. Lehman was quite impressed with one of the simplest, a builfrog. "You have to see this," he said. "When his master comes near and puts its hand out, the frog takes hold of if with his front legs and starts going, Burrer, burrer. It's remarkable. I always thought—a frog, what's a frog? But this is special."

One good thing about Mr. Lehman's approach is that he leaves things alone. He simply wants to depict the pets as they are and let their owners talk. He does not want to "take a stand" with the film on such questions as the ban on exotic pets.

Dr. Beck's approach to life, especialif in the forms that he finds it, is tolerant, too. For example, the other day he did decide that a pet owner had taken the necessary antirables and deodorizing precautions for a pet day, four prominent writers with new cussions with Leonard Probst at 11 A.M. on Tuesdays. The place is the 92d Street Y.M.-Y.W.H.A., off Lexington skunk and also had a well-maintained home, and so he let the pet stay there. But this was an exception, not the rule, he emphasizes.

"When you live in a high-density area like this crazy city, surely you should be content with an animal that lends itself to captivity," he says.

Human curiosity and affection, of course, range far beyond that standard, law or no law. That is one of the points Mr. Lehman is documenting. Fish tanks of 250 gallons and more are maintained by pet owners to keep large saltwater fish feeling at home in some city residences.

In another, there is an owl, beloved of its owner, who cares for it quite well, even obtaining live mice for its diet. The trouble here is that the owner started breeding the mice and gradually came to recognize differences among them. Identity breeds affection, and so now the bred mice no longer are fed to the owl but instead have become still another pet—amassing in the scores—in this apartment. The owl now get laboratory mice that were marked for extinction, a case of urban

Sometimes it is the owner and not the pet who cannot survive their re-lationship. A housewife in Manhattan enjoyed the intelligence and affection of a raccoon she had brought back from the country. But its habit of washing its food turned into a mania, she said, in which the raccoon kept taking all the kitchen utensils off the walls and out of the cabinets and endlessly washing them. The relationship was ended.

Mr. Lehman said the idea for his film originated, appropriately enough, on the West Side. He had visited a friend and was leaving, as the elevator operator griped about his life.

"There are more animals in this place than people," the man complained at just the instant he opened the doors and was confronted with a yapping pack of eight or 10 dogs back from a street run with their leashed

So she started hunting and found such things as a marvelous bee colony in an apartment overlooking Central Park, where the owner has cut a portal in the window and the bees fly out into the park for food and return contentedly. Even more elaborate is a colony of 200,000 South American ants that live by mulching leaves and sustaining themselves on the mulch

Tarantulas, black widow spiders, snakes, even 100-pound snakes are commonplace in the city, Mr. Lehman has found. But it is the symbiosis with an urban master more than the exotic pet alone that matters.

Dr. Beck agrees, citing the case of a complaint he received about a boa constrictor used as a costume by a topless dancer, its working environ-ment was warm and friendly, he judged, but the boa had to go because the law, like the snake, could be stretched only so far.

Paint Bomb Is Hurled at Spivakov, But Violinist Never Drops a Beat

By PETER G. DAVIS

The atmosphere was unusually tense in Carnegie Hall Sunday night during Vladimir Spivakov's violin recital. Security guards were stationed at the doors and near the stage, as they invariably are for concerts given by Soviet artists these days.

Two incidents occurred before intermission, the first during the opening selection, Schubert's Sonata in A minor, as a man stormed down the aisle shouting in Russian, "Remember the Soviet Jews," and threw a crumoled object toward the back of the stage, past Mr. Spivakov and his accompanist,

Boris Bechterev. The second disturbance came halfway through the next item on the program, Bach's unaccompanied Chaconne in D minor, when another man hurled a paint bomb at Mr. Spivakov, whose white dress shirt was suddenly splattered with blood-red paint. Both men were quickly removed, and the concert proceeded without further incident

Terrorists must be extremely insensi-Terrorists must be extremely insensitive to music, for tossing paint at a violinist playing Bach's Chaconne is simply poor timing. This work is so demanding and musically profound, that when it is well performed, and Mr. Spivakov was playing it superbly, such an act of violence is akin to taking a knife to the Mona Lisa. Mr. Spivakov never dropped a beat all through the uproar, and ended on such a note of passionate intensity that the audience rose and intensity that the audience rose and cheered him to the skies. Normal concert conditions more or less prevailed after intermission, and one could assess Mr. Spivakov's artistry more coolly. The 32-year-old violinist has given two previous recitals in New York, both of them highly acclaimed, and one could see why. He is a virtuoso of the first rank whose brilliant articulation of such show pieces as Stravinsky's Suite Italiene, Paganini's "The Witches' Dance" and a parcel of light encores stood as a paradigm of executional skill and aristocratic style. As far as could be gathered from the Schubert and Bach, he is also a deeply thoughtful musician whose technique and silken tone are always in the service of the composer. Completing the program was a highly unusual choice for a violin recital. Resuighi's "Il Tramonto" for soprano and string quartet. It is a lovely piece of contemplative lyricism, beautifully played by Mr. Spivakov and his three guests, William Henry (violin), Guillermo Figueroa (viola) and Julian Fifer (cello). The soloist was Makvala Kas-rashvili, whose liquid soprano and mu-sical sensitivity reinforced the fine impression she made here during the Bolshoi Opera visit in the summer of 1975.

In a statement issued from his office, Mayor Beame condemned the attack on Mr. Spivakov as "disgraceful," "I do not condone the oppression of Jews in the Soviet Union," the Mayor's state-ment went on, "But yesterday's shameful incident in Carnegie Hall did not advance the cause of Soviet Jewry.

"Mr. Spivakov is a guest in the City of New York, and I hope all of our citizens, no matter what their grievances may be against the Soviet Union, will treat the city's visitors with courtesy and respect.

"New York City has always prided itself on being one of the great cultural centers of the world. This was, to a large measure, achieved by our creation of a climate that permits artists to live and flourish in their work, free from harassment and fear.

"We should not and will not tolerate attacks on foreign artists that damage the city's reputation."

Opening bids of three clubs or three diamonds are not common, but when they do occur the responder may face some tricky problems. If he has a strong hand with a singleton in partner's suit he has a delicate choice between three no-trump, in which dummy's long suit may be unusable, and a minor-suit game in which there may be three losers.

The solidity of the opener's suit is a key factor, and although he virtually denies a solid suit he could have anything from A-K-x-x-x to J-x-x-x-xx-x-x. A convention to solve this rare problem was suggested a decade ago by a Philadelphia expert, Harlow Jeris. He would probably be surprised to learn that two players with long mem-ories used his idea recently, and it helped them to win a New Jersey title.

The players were Frank Burstein of Springfield, N.J., and Howard Hertz-berg of Alpine, N.J. Teamed with Simon Kantor of Ridgefield, N. J. Mark Mohr of Roselle Park, N.J.; Marshall Schwartz and Roger Abelson of New York, they won the North Jersey double knockout title recently, defeating teams led by Barbara Tepper of Livingston, N.J., and Jim Linbart of Englewood Cliffs, N.J., in a three-cornered final.

Three Hearts Are Bid

The three-heart response to three diamonds conventionally asked South to describe the quality of his diamonds, and the rebid showed a suit that included the ace or king, but not an A-K or A-Q combination. With the latter holdings, the rebid would have been three no-trump, and with a weaker suit four clubs or four diamonds, depending on the length of the suit. North decided against three no-trump, and temporized with four clubs. South's hand was better than it might have

And the details of Mr. Summers's and Mr. Mangold's detective work are often extremely intriguing, whether they con-cern the graffiti that were left on the walls of the "murder" room in Ipatiev House; or the trail of false evidence used to confirm the "assassination"; or the reasons why the Bolsheviks in fact kept the Romanov women alive; or the explanation of why certain of Anastasia's European relatives refused even to meet the mysterious claimant who showed up in Berlin in 1920, while an-other said, "I don't have to see her, I know, as though he had inside information; or even how the authors turned up the "file" in the first place. (The Stanford material showed up in a black cloth bag, sewn shut with thread, with a request that it not "be opened until 1 January 1950.")

Ouestions Remain

Still the questions may remain-Why all the fuss over an event that is not even mentioned in two world histories this reviewer happened to consult they simply mention Nicholas II's abdication in 1917 and leave it at that-especially because when all is said and done the book's conclusion is simply that most of the Romanovs were killed a little later than they are thought to have been and under slightly different circumstances? Why do the authors write with such a tone of triumph at their discovery, and why has that discovery excited enough interest in England to make "The File on the Tsar" a

There are a number of explanations for all this. To begin with, as the au-thors point out, "Today, as for earlier generations, the end of the Romanovs stands as a symbol of bloody revolu-tion, and perhaps the most outrageous act of regicide in history." To know that that horrendous scene of slaughter never occurred in that dungeon-cellarwhich in any case was neither a dun-geon nor in the cellar—is to divest the symbol of its considerable power. Then of course the historical record has to be set straight, particularly when doing so brings to light new in-formation on the sinister if ultimately abortive roles that England and Germany apparently played in keeping the Romanovs alive.

Finally, the disappearance of the Romanovs is simply a grand 20th-century mystery, making up in gossip value for whatever it may lack in ultimate his-torical significance. No wonder there is a faint note of self-congratulation between the lines of "The File on the Tsar." The authors have unearthed some interesting history, and turned up gossip of a very high order indeed.

Trial of Friedgood Told About Letters From His 'Mistress'

sustained objections to admitting the letters into evidence.

Dr. Friedgood, 57 years old, is accused of killing his 48-year-old wife. Sophie, with massive doses of a pain-killing drug so he would be free to join the alleged mistress, Harriet Boell Larsen, now living in Denmark.

Sidney Klemow, Dr. Friedgood's brother-in-law, testified that three letters sup-posedly written by Miss Larsen to the defendant were found in the safe-deposit box when it was opened on June 24, 1975, six days after Mrs. Friedgood's death.

Testifying for the prosecution, Mr. Klemow, of Hazelton, Pa., also said Dr. Friedgood's passport and a "photograph of a nude woman" had been found in the box. The nude woman was not identi-Mr. Klemow said the Hebrew word for

Dr. Friedgood's son, Stephen, testified last week that his mother, who was found dead in her Kensington, L.I., home, had referred to Miss Larsen as a "whore" during arguments with the physician.

Judge Richard C. Delin, in Nassau Couny Court, sustained an objection by Dr. riedgood's lawyer, John J. Sutter, to admitting the three letters into evidence. Mr. Sutter said the letters were "not even signed by Harriet," and argued there was no proof that Dr. Friedgood had received

The Ford Vetoes

was the desire of many independent voters to have a President and Congress of the same political party. They could see the logical incongruity of electing a heavily Democratic and predominantly liberal Congress while also returning to office a conservative Republican President. Mr. Carter's election provides at least the opportunity for a more constructive and cooperative relationship between the White House and Capitol

As against that promising prospect, other voters have feared that one-party control of the Federal Government might lead to hasty legislation and the overriding of minority viewpoints. Those are dangers to be guarded against but, in reality, the diffusion of power through the committee system of Congress and the heterogeneity of the Democratic Party provide strong checks and balances.

Senator Russell Long, chairman of the Finance Committee, for example, is hardly likely to be submissive toward Mr. Carter's proposals on tax reform or health insurance, while Senator James Eastland, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, can be counted on to be equally skeptical of any White House proposals on civil rights and civil liberties. As every President learns, party unity goes only so far when controversial legislation is at stake.

Nevertheless, the fact that the new President and the majority of the new Congress will share fundamentally the same outlook on most domestic issues should have important consequences for the shaping of legislation. One way to measure the prospective change is to look back at the legislation that the Democraticcontrolled 93d and 94th Congresses enacted and Mr.

Some of those vetoes involved efforts by Capitol Hill to impose a Congressional control over the conduct of foreign policy in Cyprus and other trouble spots.

An important factor in President-elect Carter's victory . Mr. Carter can be expected to resist such incursions on Presidential authority as vigorously as did his predecessor. Other vetoes concern minor bills or measures which in the public interest any President ought to resist.

There were, however, many vetoes that reflected a philosophical difference between the Congress and Mr. Ford. The President, for example, pocket-vetoed in 1974 a bill to authorize $1.9 billion for five basic health programs including community health centers, family planning, and health care for migrant workers. In the same period, he pocket-vetoed a bill to provide financial support for the training of nurses. Mr. Carter would almost surely have signed these measures.

In the environmental field, President Ford killed a bill establishing strict standards for the leasing of public land to coal mining companies and twice vetoed bills to regulate strip-mining. These are measures Mr. Carter has pledged himself to support.

At various times, President Ford vetoed bills appropriating or authorizing funds for education and for emergency employment programs, contending that the amounts were excessive. He also sought to block a bill providing money to the states to enable them to meet Federal standards for day-care centers and another concerning the school lunch program. These are the kinds of programs on which the Carter Administration and the Congress should be able to reach a meeting of the minds without great difficulty.

Mr. Carter has promised the country vigorous executive leadership. He can make good on that promise and still develop a broadly amicable relationship with his own party in the new Congress. In makeup, it differs little from the outgoing Congress, and the record shows that on many issues the 94th had a progressive and constructive approach that needed only a Presidential signature rather than a veto to complete a legislative accomplishment.

An Argument for New York...

fiscally stricken city, none is likely to carry more weight than that just issued by the economy-conscious Citizens Budget Commission.

For years before the city plunged into semi-bankruptcy last year, this private watchdog agency campaigned against profligacy at City Hall. In the months since the bubble of borrow-and-spend finally burst, the C.B.C. has persistently pressed for more and speedier spending cuts to bring the municipal budget into balance.

Today, however, the C.B.C. has concluded that the harsh economies mandated under the state-imposed three-year financial plan and Federal aid legislation may be too much too soon. In its analysis, the commission warned that the $500 million in additional cuts required to balance the budget by the end of the next fiscal year could pose serious danger of "social and economic discuptions."

That is a threat that has been causing increasing concern among close observers of the city's austerity program. Stephen Berger, executive director of the Emergency Financial Control Board, who continues to insist that the requirements of the plan be met, warned the other day that social unrest could result if cuts were made "with no concern for people," but merely "to protect the interests of bureaucracy."

The trouble is, the bureaucracy also consists of people. Thus the fiscally sound demand for greater economy and efficiency in the municipal health-care bureaucracy could lead to the discharge of thousands of hospital workers. In the absence of alternative job opportunities. the result would be suffering and despair in minority communities—and a sharp increase in welfare rolls.

Furthermore, as the Citizens Budget Commission and others have pointed out, heavy real estate and other taxes imposed by the plan, especially its debt service provisions, are impeding New York's economic recovery and thus its chances for long-term fiscal self-sufficiency.

To avoid such counter-productive consequences, the commission has urged Congress to hold hearings on alternatives to the current plan which are designed to delay and ease-but not to avoid-the impact of essential economies. These are: a "stretch-out" to allow one or two more years for the city to balance its budget, or,

Of all the arguments for additional Federal aid for this as Felix Rohatyn has recently proposed, a Federal loan guarantee which would facilitate restructuring the municipal debt and the reduction of annual debt service costs. We favor the latter.

> Neither proposal in any way represents a retreat from the C.B.C.'s commitment-or the city's-to fiscal responsibility. Indeed, Mayor Beame and other top city officials have commendably reaffirmed their determination to move ahead on the current time schedule to achieve a balanced budget by mid-1978.

> Nevertheless, the C.B.C. presentation offers a reasoned appeal from an unimpeachable source for modifications in a plan that could destroy New York in the process of trying to save the city. It is a plea that merits the most urgent attention, not only of Congress but of the incoming Carter Administration as well.

... an Urban Agenda

New York is not alone in its need for more understanding and generous Federal assistance, a fact that was underscored by a weekend meeting of more than 100 of the nation's mayors in Chicago.

The mayors met to prepare an urban agenda for President-elect Carter, with whom they will seek an early meeting "to convince him the cities should be a top priority." Mayor Kenneth Gibson of Newark emphasized the human dimension of the urban problem.

"We're not talking about what the mayors want, we're talking about what the people need," Mr. Gibson said. He called for increased Federal aid to create jobs and assist in such areas as housing, transportation and health. Proper Federal attention to such national, human concerns would go a long way toward solving the fiscal problems of New York and other cities.

It was somewhat disconcerting that Mr. Carter sent as his representative to the mayors' meeting Howard J. Samuels, the former Offtrack Betting chief who once proposed bankruptcy as a solution to New York City's problems. If Mr. Samuels is to be an adviser to the next President on urban affairs, we hope he has thought better of what the Citizens Budget Commission cogently describes as a "no-solution alternative."

'Fraternity and Love'

It has been a very long time since the situation in Lebanon has been marked by an atmosphere of "fraternity and love." Yet it was that phrase President Elias Sarkis chose to use in appealing to his tragically divided countrymen to accept what comes very close to a Syrian occupation of Lebanon.

To the leftist Moslems and Palestinians who were being killed by Syrians or trying to kill Syrians only a few weeks ago, it will be hard to accept the forces from Damascus as trustworthy neutrals. Even among the Lebanese Christians whose position was so improved by the Syrian alliance before the current cease-fire, there is now suspicion of the Syrians, stemming from the fear that these foreign and Moslem troops may yet make as abrupt a turn against the Christians as they previously had made toward them.

How will the Syrian occupation of Lebanon affect the military and logistical situation? The Syrians may dream of annexing Lebanon, but any such effort would probably unite all the contending Lebanese factions in opposition, while it would risk swift economic retribution from Saudi Arabia, whose economic power made the present precarious cease-fire possible.

On the broader Middle East problem, dominated by the continuing confrontation between the Arabs and Israel, the Syrian occupation raises new questions. Jerusalem has already made it plain that it does not intend to sit idly by and let a situation develop that would permit Palestinian guerrillas to use southern Lebanon as a base for military operations against Israel. Any effort to do that could precipitate major Israeli participation in the Lebanese crisis, with widespread and dangerous possibilities.

What seems more likely is that once the Syrians are the unchallenged military masters of Lebanon, they will try to use that fact to improve their diplomatic position in renewed negotiations with Israel. The whole tangled problem may be brought back to Geneva and a conference in which Moscow and Washington as well as Arabs and Israelis are represented.

These possibilities make it particularly urgent that President-elect Carter give top priority to his Middle Eastern policy as he prepares for his January inauguration. The developments flowing from Lebanon's present fragile peace may be the first severe foreign policy test of the Carter Administration.

Letters to the Editor

Thoughts on a Close Election

To the Editor:

To whom does President-elect Jimmy Carter owe a debt of gratitude for his narrow victory? To Ronald Reagan, of course. If the former California Governor had campaigned actively and aggressively for Mr. Ford in the pivotal states of North Carolina, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, South Carolina, Ohio and, perhaps, Pennsylvania, he could have tipped the scales in favor of the President, Today, Mr. Ford, instead of his opponent, would be enjoying the razor thin victory.

However, Mr. Reagan (who was my original choice for the Presidency). chose to sit on his hands or, at best, give lip service to the President's cause, Mr. Reagan's apparent sourgrapes attitude after the Republican convention and his lackluster support for the G.O.P. standard-bearer since Kansas City, contributed as much as any other single factor to the Republican loss and to the defeat of Mr. Reagan's own conservative cause. What an ironic twist!

JOSEPH A. MORRONE Brooklyn, Nov. 5, 1976

To the Editor:

In trying to explain the electoral closeness of the Presidential election, commentators are giving significant weight to the role of blacks and labor in key states. While these factors are undoubtedly important, they were to some extent predictable.

Ironically for President Ford, New York State's 41 electoral votes for President-elect Carter turned out to be the winning margin of victory. Whether President Ford's initial arrogance and seeming lack of compassion to the needs of New York City and its people was the decisive factor in the electorate's mind remains to be fully analyzed. I, for one, hazard the guess that this political blunder cost the President the election.

> ARNOLD J. YOSKOWITZ New Milford, N. J., Nov. 4, 1976

To the Editor:

President-elect Jimmy Carter's narrow victory and President Ford's extraordinary showing on Nov. 2 point to the need for ascertaining more clearly what is the mandate the electorate gives to an incoming President. Hasn't the time come for a law to have a referendum on a number of important issues on every Presidential ballot, beginning in 1980?

Such a referendum, drawn up carefully and responsibly to elicit the views of the electorate on, let us say, five of the most important issues, could serve to lighten the burden of the President in effectuating the will of the American people and to check and supplement the findings of pollsters and media surveys (based on samples of several thousand persons at most). Certainly, there is the voting-machine technology, the voter pacity to formulate honestly, clearly and competently the questions for the ballot. A direct, quadrennial referendum of this kind could do much to make our democratic process more nearly perfect. DAVID LIBERSON New York, Nov. 3, 1976

Many prospective voters are disenfranchised by official inaction, not personal apathy. Late mailing of absentee ballots is a glaring example. While officials exhort us to exercise our franchise, voters living overseas or away from home find a tardy response to their request for an absentee ballot.

Rather than forfeit my right to vote for this reason, I traveled 500 miles to vote in person. Americans living in Western Europe were not so lucky, for even with a Federal lawsuit in New York and Department of Justice intervention, some did not receive postal ballots in time. Surely exercising the franchise should not hinge on bureaucratic vagaries or the ability to take long trips home. National voting registration and better postal ballot procedures could allow more people in a mobile society to vote. Close elections should turn on popular choice, not voting law caprice.

STANLEY HERR Brookline, Mess., Nov. 3, 1976

To the Editor:

President Ford's haggard, hoarse appearance during his election-conceding interview suggests as a major task for the Carter Administration the deflation of the pompous Imperial Presi-

Ford's transmogrification after two years as President-from the modest man who in 1974 announced his diffident intention not to seek election in 1976 to the desperate, ranting campaigner of the last week of the electoral season-shows the pernicious effects of the Imperial Presidency on a decent, mediocre man. And his two predecessors showed the Imperial Presidency's effect on mentally mediocre, morally corrupt men.

With "good ole boy" farmer Jimmy in the White House, we have an excellent opportunity to shrink the Imperial Presidency closer to human scale. Carter, we may hope, will return us at least a short distance toward the unpretentious, folksy ways of Andrew Jackson. The folksy approach is a good antidote to megalomania. As we saw in the dismal case of Richard Nixon, if you treat a President like a Roman emperor-god, he may behave like one.

C. W. GRIFFIN Denville, N.J., Nov. 4, 1976

Throughout this long campaign, columnists and politicians exhorted us to "get to the polls and vote." They decried apathy in the face of dismal predictions of voter turnout, and I heard their pleas. With great public spirit, I asked my Board of Elections, in Brooklyn, to mail an absentee ballot. to Connecticut.

I gave them two months' notice, but they gave me one day. My form arrived in New Haven on Nov. 1, several hours To the Editor: past the legal cutoff point.

Well, it's all over now, and I hope the best man won (by a margin wider than one vote). Thank you, Board of Elections, for the quaint souvenir which was to have been my ballot.

EILEEN FEDER ALTERBAUM New Haven, Conn., Nov. 1, 1976

Grain Reserves: Toward Global Guidelines

To the Editor: No one can take issue with Lester Brown's argument (Op-Ed Oct. 27) that without adequate grain reserves the international community cannot respond to the human needs caused by crop shortfalls in individual countries. Crop shortfalls inevitably generate higher food prices, leading to increased suffering and starvation. Adequate reserves, then, can serve two functions: meeting emergency needs and stabilizing food prices to the benefit of rich and poor consumers.

Closer attention, however, needs 10 be given to the guidelines and mechanisms for building and allocating reserves. Reserves could be accumulated by North America as in the past or controlled by an international agreement, as agreed to at the Rome Food Conference. The implications of each approach are vastly different.

With an international agreement, the accumulation and distribution of reserves would be governed by internationally agreed-upon guidelines. Thus, the American farmer would receive a degree of protection he would not otherwise have against arbitrary government release of reserves to depress prices at home. Moreover, the cost of building and maintaining reserves would be shared among participants, and not rest solely on North American consumers and taxpayers.

But without an international agreement, the U.S. and Canada might decide to cut their acreage rather than re-accumulate stocks on a significant scale. Indeed, with our Omnibus Farm Bill expiring next March 15, some pressure groups have already begun lobbying for the reinstatement of our acreage-set-aside program. Obviously, without reserves, a bad crop means higher food prices and more deaths.

Lacking an international agreement, several developed importing nations have begun protecting themselves through bilateral trade agreements. Such agreements in effect in 1976 already pre-empt a full 35 percent of grains available from the major exporters. This increases the vulnerability of developing nations to higher prices by, in effect, creating a two-tiered world grain market where the poor pay more.

The world needs food reserves. An international agreement puts the benefits to the consumer, the producer and to the poor on a far firmer base than could be done by any national effort. After two unspectacular years, enthusiasm in the international negotiations is waning. Because of our unique position in the world grain market, energetic U. S. initiatives, inviting constructive responses from other countries, could regenerate the momentum required to reach agreement. Needed is the concerted expression of public will supporting such a national thrust, JERALD CIEKOT

Director, World Hunger Project American Friends Service Committee New York, Oct. 29, 1976

'Freedom From Lists' To the Editor:

I have just written to the Govern ment Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20402, for a book entitled "Protecting Your Right to Privacy." It is 730 pages long. It simply lists the lists our names appear on.

The size of this book alone is eloquent proof of the need for laws regulating the acquisition by the Government of the names or personal identifiers of private citizens. I there fore propose that:

●No agency of the Governmen should acquire names of persona identifiers of private citizens in excess of what it needs to fulfill its legally defined function.

 When a citizen's name appears or a list, he should be so informed Also, he should receive a yearly notice that his name is remaining on

• A citizen should have the right to have his name removed from a list if the name is not removed, he should be told why.

As a member of a profession which is being asked by the Government to cough up enormous amounts of data I am sensitive to this issue. Data power in this age of the computed We need to express a new freedo freedom from lists.

conciliation and compromise.

The political dimension of the Northern Ireland crisis has been overshadowed in the public mind by the violence of the last seven years. It is the violence of the Irish Republican Army, the counterviolence of the Protestant paramilitaries, and the efforts of the security forces to counter both, that make the headlines in Ireland and abroad. Yet this violence has changed nothing in the underlying situation apart from retarding political progress. Northern Ireland was established as a separate political entity within the United Kingdom in 1920. Once this political unit came into existence, placing half a million Irish nationalists under the political dominance of a local majority of unionists, it created two new problems for Ireland.

The problem that for many years afterward was to loom largest was the political division of Ireland, which the great majority of its people had never sought and with which they could not easily reconcile themselves. The second was the inherently unstable political entity of Northern Ireland.

The nationalists' half-million, finding themselves suddenly a minority in this new political entity, could not psychologically accept the subordinate role thus thrust upon them, and effectively opted out of the new political unit, which they did not in fact expect to survive for long. The unionist million, finding themselves transformed from a mipority in the island of Ireland, fearful for their future in a land in which they had been in ascendancy for many centuries, reinforced their majority at local as well as provincial level by discrimination in housing and employment, thus securing control of local authorities even in areas where they were in a local minority. This potentially explosive situation was permitted to continue for decade after decade by a British Parliament that so far abdicated its responsibilities for the area as to refuse to permit questions relating to Northern Ireland to be raised in the British Parliament. Indeed, 40 years and more were to elanse before it began to be realized in Ireland, either north or south, that the two problems—the political diviagainst the minority in the northcould be tackled effectively only in the reverse order. So long as nationalists and unionists in the north remained at loggerheads with each other, unable or unwilling to create a viable Northern community, the question of land.

On Ulster

By Garret FitzGerald

the north's relationship with the south was bound to remain insoluble and, equally, the condition of the Northern nationalists was bound to remain intolerable, socially, economically and psychologically.

By 1972, the conditions for a start to the resolution of the Northern Ireland problem were, however, largely met in that the Northern minority accepted the existence of the Northern Ireland political system and was asserting its right to full participation in the operation of that system.

Second, the British Government was convinced that self-government in Northern Ireland on a basis of the domination of one section of the community by another was indefensible and must be ended.

And third, the people of the south were now convinced that their role in the solution of the problem should not be to raise tensions in Northern Ireland by appearing to threaten the million unionists there, but rather to help the minority to secure their rightful role in the affairs of Northern Ire and in Iriendship and cooperationwhich alone might in time soften and, it was hoped, eventually eliminate the political division of the island.

There remained the task of persuading the unionist majority, with 65 percent of the population and almost 70 percent of the adult population, to accept psychologically the ending of their dominant role in Northern Ireland self-government, and the restoration of a system of government in which, at least until trust and confidence between the two sections of the northern community could be established, power would be shared proportionately.

However, unionist fears regarding the nationalist minority persisted despite the evident commitment of the political leaders of the minority, the Social Democratic and Labor Party, sion of the island and discrimination with the full backing of at least fivesixths of the minority population, to the proposition that change in the relationship between Northern Ireland and the Republic could come about only with the full consent of the majority of the people of Northern Ire-

The Basic No-Frills Box

By Fred M. Hechinger

A Page One article in The Wall Street Journal last week was headlined 'Bye-Bye Basics?" Anyone who has followed the year's educational debate, with its almost obsessive demand for a "return to the basics," might have hastily jumped to the conclusion that the pendulum had begun to swing once again and that "the basics" are on the way out.

Such a conclusion would have been dead wrong. The article in question had nothing to do with education. Its topic was home construction. And it made the interesting point that two years after home builders had unveiled the "no-frills house" as the answer to skyrocketing housing costs, the American public, on the way back to prosperity, again wanted more than the basics in their shelter.

"The back-to-basics trend has kind of fizzled out," said a spokesman for the National Association of Home Builders, People wanted more than homes stripped to the bare essentials.

This could well be an education story after all. For while Americans apparently feel affluent enough to want and to afford more than a "back to the besics" home, many of them are still pounding the table and demanding a "back to the basics" education, with-This raises obvious questions: What are the basics? Are they important? What are frills? Are they expendable? Except for a minuscule coterie of misguided ideologues who place building igloos on a par with learning to read, there is virtually universal agreement today that the basic skills, also known as the Three R's, are indispensable. There really has never been a serious question whether children ought to learn reading, writing and mathematics. There has been - and quite properly-much discussion why too many children have lagged in those skills and what pedagogical strategies are needed to stop failure in these

An increased public awareness that these skills are truly important should be given every possible encouragement. But in the hands of educational conservatives, who are trying to ride

tive political movements, the "back to the basics" banner is synonymous with the elimination of "frills," whatever that may mean.

One man's frills are another man's basics. But under the merciless budget ax, frills in schools around the country have come to be such subjects as music, art, foreign languages, and a variety of cultural and humanistic topics. (Many of those who advocate ean basics without wasteful fat tend to scream in horror when the ball team is in jeopardy or the cheering squad and marching band are threat-

Two points must be stressed. The first is that teaching the basic skills effectively is not cheap. Teaching first-graders to read and write calls for skilled teachers working intensively with very small groups of children the kind of staffing many conservative critics also decry as frills. Preparing children to manage the basic skills successfully presupposes a good deal of learning and conditioning long before first grade. Where the home is inadequate to the task, effective substitutes must be sought in well-run day-care centers; Head Start projects, nursery schools and kindergartens. All

The second point is that a program stripped to the basics usually does not provide much real education, even in the basics. If reading and writing are to have strong appeal, children must be interested in them as tools with which to tackle a world that seems interesting to them. Bare literacy, without the development and enjoyment of those other skills-in music, the arts, an understanding of a variety of people and cultures—offers little incentive to put the basic skills to work. The Wall Street Journal quoted one home buyer who said: "I looked at some no-frill houses and they were just terrible. I didn't want to live in

Is it unreasonable to suggest that children, faced with a no-frill education, may find it similarly "terrible" a "box" in which they don't want their minds to live?

Little'd'=A Little Humility

By Tom Wicker

Jimmy Carter says he wants to make the Presidency "more democratic with a little 'd'." Amen, to that, but some of us would feel a little more hopeful about it if Mr. Carter hadn't been so obviously delighted by his first ride in a Presidential jet.

Radio news reports had it that on boarding this flying palace for the first time, Mr. Carter observed, "This is the one I've been waiting for." That brings to mind an instructive anecdote from Dwight D. Eisenhower. a man who knew a perquisite when he had one.

After Richard Nixon's defeat by John Kennedy in 1960, General Eisenhower recalled, he as the outgoing President was required to brief the President-elect on the inner workings of the White House. What seemed to impress "young Mr. Kennedy" most, the general wrote later, was when he reached under his desk, pressed a button and a helicopter landed on the South Lawn,

Ay, there's the rub! Which of us wouldn't relish a helicopter appearing from heaven at the touch of a button? Who wouldn't want his or her owr. Boeing 747 to fly the whole family from Americus to St. Simons Island in good old downhome Georgia? If you were addicted to the stuff, wouldn't you, like Lyndon Johnson, love to have an armchair with a tap that produced a glass of Fresca on

If any one of us had the chance at Government expense to be protected by the Secret Service, spoiled by white-jacketed servants, confronted by a telephone in every bathroom, and ushered into every gathering by "Hail to the Chief"—not to mention having our office right in the house, thus eliminating the traffic and parking problems-would we voluntarily reject it?

Well, we shall see what we shall see in Jimmy Carter's case, but lots of us are rooting for more denim shirts, fewer neckties and maybe some softball on the old helicopter pad. Here are a few other modest suggestions to help Mr. Carter find that lowercase "d" the Presidency lost somewhere between Abe Lincoln and Richard qWalk to your Inaugural. It's not all that far from the White House to the Capitol, and your publicity photos show you've got the boots for it. Thomas Jefferson hoofed it, you know, and you'd find lots of good old boys along the way to chat with. You could even say in your speech-but keep it short-that you'd just dramatized the lack of decent public transportation in this country, as well as the need to save energy by cutting down on the use of gas-guzzling autos to transport one or two people.

CLater on, give the commercial airlines a try. The rest of us characters that travel have to stand in line for luggage and sit three abreast and that's really life with a little "d." You'd not only meet some interesting folks, you'd get an earful of what's really bothering them, just the way you say you did in your primary campaign. And you could tell Congress you were doing your part to save fuel, which is more than Congress does.

If you must use Air Force One, rename it "The Peanut" What was good enough for you when you wanted our votes ought to be good enough when you've got them. And maybe even that much of a rejection of the "No. 1" syndrome would be good for the lot of us.

¶Tell the Secret Service to stop flying those armor-plated limousines around the country at our expense, just so you can have one to ride in every time you jam up traffic with a motorcade in Chicago or somewhere. The local auto dealers will be glad to provide you with a slick new demonstrator for your personal transportation needs, and if not, you know all about Hertz and Avis. There may be some risk involved if you give up your armor plate. but if you're going to put the little "d' back in the White House, you can't really have it both ways.

EFind out how many times a day they played "Hail to the Chief" for Richard Nixon. Issue strict orders that it's to be played no more than half that many times for you, and not at all in the White House where you're the leader of the band. Whoever thought up that custom must have been one of those Founding Fathers who wanted to call the President "Your Majesty."

¶Call up Bobby Byrd and Tip O'Neill, after they're elected Senate Majority Leader and House Speaker, and tell them you'd appreciate it if they reserve, say, the afternoon of the last Wednesday of every month (Congressmen and Senators take long weekends). Then you could drop in at the Capitol at least that often and answer any questions the boys might have-reserving the right to say "no comment," if necessary.

Twrite Abe Rosenthal, managing editor of The New York Times, and offer him a deal. If he'll take the capital "P" out of "President" in the Times stylebook, you really will put the little "d" back into a democratic presidency for America. I know you can do it but I'm not sure about Abe.

"Then you're prepared to swear, Miss Farnsworth, that said contract leapt out of the file drawer and simply flew away?"

But whereas most of these Catholic "traditionalists," as they have come to be known, concentrate on retaining the pre-Council mass, those in Hicksville champion an additional cause, the plight of a suspended Archbishop, Mar-cel Lefebvre of France, whose running dispute with Pope Paul VI has emerged as a major ecclesiatical struggle.

The dispute has caused a furor in Europe and considerable interest in the United States. Many regard it as the most serious crisis within the church since Pope Paul's 1967 encyclical that prohibited artificial contra-ception. The Vatican is clearly worried

A Multimillion Dollar Export Industry Springs From Sea Urchin's Golden Roe

SANTA BARBARA, Calif.-Down in the sea off the California coast, divers and entrepreneurs have struck gold inside the shell of a spiny character called the sea urchin, The gold is the golden roe of the sea urchin and it glitters as long as the veather in Japan is terrible.

The sea urchin is an abundant, un-glamorous — perhaps ugly is an ap-propriate description—undersea scavenger that has generally been regarded as a lowly nuisance in the marine world's pecking order."

But over the last three years, a substantial export industry has developed in California for sea urchin roe, a food prized by many Japanese. Some people say that it has aphrodisise qualities.

"They're pulling in 80,000 pounds of urchins a night in Santa Barbara alone 20 days a month," Said Michael Wagner, a 29-year-old former aerospace, financial specialist turned amateur skin. diver who is one of the entrepreneurs in the new sea urchin business. "It's become-a multi-million-dollar industry." Just before dawn these days, at least 70 small boats leave port in Santa bags, which are pulled up and emptied by an assistant on the boat. The divers receive 10 cents a pound for the sea urchins, and a good man can reportedly bring back 3,000 pounds or more a day.

It can be a dangerous business, however. Every year there are reports of at least one or two divers who are drowned, sometimes as a result of fatigue, sometimes as a result of being trapped in kelp. A few have reported attacks by small sharks.

But the pay is good. Most divers take in more than $1,000 a week after expenses, and a few have been reputed to earn more than $4,000 in a week.

After the urchins are landed, they are taken to one of six processing plants along the coast. Their shells are cracked, and the roe is removed. It is packed on birch trays or in bulk packages and airlifted to Japan from Los Angeles International Airport.

"The production during each of the past two years has been about 7 million pounds," said Susumu Kato, a researcher for the Commerce Department's National Marine Fishery Service. He is credited with helping to get the indus-try going by convincing fishermen that there was a good market abroad for what had been regarded here as a useless undersea nuisance that was being destroyed by commercial kelp produc-

A big factor in development of the industry, Mr. Kato said, was the revaluation of the Japanese yen more than two years ago, which made it more economically attractive to airlift the ros to Japan. The freight cost is 74 cents a

Mr. Kato reported that some people who have tried sea urchin roe say that they prefer it to caviar (sturgeon roe). "The brighter the yellow, the brighter the gold that the roe is colored, the more valuable it is," said Mr. Wagner, who is a part owner of the Santa Barbara Fish Company

Most of the roe is sold in Japanese sushi bars—cafes that sell canapé-sized portions of rice and seaweed with various toppings and fillings. Sea urchin roe is among the most expensive of the

It sells in Japan for as much as $15 a pound. Brokers here generally pay processors $2.75 a pound, although prices can go up substantially when demand is especially high.

A Special Delicacy

"Our busiest periods are holidays, when many people in Japan buy the sea urchin roe because it is a special delicacy, and when the weather is bad in Japan," said Charles Haung, a Santa Barbara sea urchin broker.

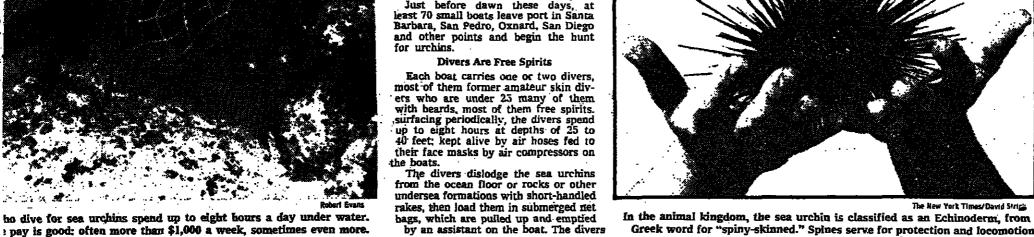

Japanese prefer the urchin roe that is produced in Japan because it is fresher. After it is snatched up from and airlifted to Tokyo, the California product is usually three days old when it reaches the consumer.

Nevertheless, there are some periods, especially from September through March, when the weather frequently keeps Japanese divers in port. Then the prices paid for the American prod-

"Ours only have value when they can't get theirs; you've got to constantly watch the weather in Japan and make your moves accordingly," said Mr. Wagner. "We've had three or four processors go out of business in

Gold prices soured as much as $5 an ounce in Europe, and the dollar and the pound fell sharply in heavy trading in currency markets. about the possible implications of the Even such an eminent Catholic theologian as Hans Küng, who is in disrepute at the Vatican because of his "progressive" stance, concedes that Archbishop Lefebvre has a point in arguing that some Vatican II pronouncements were insufficiently de-

In their literature and public pleas, the Archbishop's forces mingle apoca-lyptic warnings of destruction of the church with visions of victory over a great enemy. They see themselves as embattled warriors, loyal defenders of an almost lost cause that history will

No Great Following

The ultratraditionalist drive has yet to demonstrate a large following in the United States or Europe, despite indications of some growth and publicity surrounding Archbishop Lefebvre's dramatic acts of rebellion. The Rev. Gommar DePauw, the flamboyant founder of the Catholic Traditionalists Movement, now in its 12th year, estimates there are 10,000 activist traditionalists among 49 million Catholics in the United States, but believes that millions more are sympathizers.

Meanwhile, data from other sources indicate that the recently introduced new order of the mass has gained overwhelming acceptance. A survey by the vey issued earlier showed 80 percent of those questioned were in favor of the new liturgy.

Two protégés of Archbishop Lefebvre are based on Long Island, where they offer the Tridentine mass in a garage chapel and in the V.F.W. hall, conduct a school with iron discipline and the Baltimore catechism, and campaign tirelessly for their leader.

The Rev. Clarence Kelly, 34 years old, is director of work on Long Island and heads the United States branch of the Society of St. Pius X, the Archbishop's official organization. This summer he was joined by the Rev. Donald Sanborn, 26, a native of Flushing, Queens, who, like Father Kelly, blends unbending principle with disarming

Both dropped out of the major semi-nary of the Diocese of Rockville Centre after deciding that the modern church would despoil the faith.

Rituals From The Past

At the Hicksville service, Father Kelly exemplified the movement's loyalty to the past. He stood facing the collapsible Formica altar and, with two altar boys kneeling beyond him, solemnly and inaudibly repeated the ancient Latin liturgy. Behind him the congregants engaged in private, silent devotions with heads bowed, or stared transfixed in the direction of the priest. *Most followed only with missals, many of them worn and dog-eared, and struck a mood of reverence.

Father Kelly's sermon stressed the need to restore the "true church and the chosen people, namely, the Catholic church and the Catholic people" to its pre-20th-century form. Congregants— of middle-aged, elderly and young families-listened attentively. Later they received forms on which to pledge financial support.

-. Last week, amid signs that the de-fiant Archbishop continues to rally a modest but potentially significant body of adherents here and in Europe, the 70-year-old prelate began his latest attack on the Pope and Vatican Council H at an outdoor mass attended by 7,000 people in Friedrichshaten, West

In a sermon interrupted several times by wild applause, Archbishop Lefebvre called the Council "an adulterous compromise between truth and error leading to false ecumenism as a result of having allowed liberal democratic ideas to infiltrate the church." He also reiterated his charge that "it is not we who are causing the break, but Rome and the bishops."

It was typical of the Archbishop's invective. He has called the Pope a the new rite a "bastard mass" and the church derisively, as increasingly "Protestant."

Archbishop Lefebvre's refusal to obey the Pope has brought harsh criticism of him and his followers from virtually every sector of the church, including Father DePauw and other conservatives who have expressed revulsion at such insubordination.

"The church is supposed to be open to ideas," said Father Kelly, a fine-featured man with wire-rim glasses and dancing eyes, "but it's nothing like that at all for us. There's been a complete blackout on what we have to say. It's like we're lepers." Seated opposite Father Kelly on the lower floor of Christ Lutheran Church in Wantagh, L. I., where the St. Pius V school holds session for 80 children, Father Sanborn, energetic and philosophical, elaborated further. "It's very hard to deal with" he says, folding his arms in his floor-length black cassock. "People empathize with us. all right. But no one wants to be out of step."

In a spacious two-story house in East Meadow that contains numerous statues and a private chapel, the priests eat fish on Friday and recite the rosary and Four hundred Catholics on an average Sunday attend the two masses in the V.F.W. hall. One priest says mass there and the other visits other stations on the regional circuit, Bethlehem, Pa., or Wilmington, Del.

Other Locales Involved

Other priests fan out from St. Pius X Society bases across the nation, including Texas, California and Michigan. The Michigan base includes a seminary for 20 students, housed in a converted farmhouse in Armada, 70 miles north of Detroit. The facilities are usually

The Rev. Thomas Kelly, an associate general secretary of the United States Catholic Conference, thinks the movement "has very limited appeal." Over-all, he said, the Catholic laity has reacted "very strongly against Archbishop Lefebvre." In general, he said, American Catholics are more concerned with everyday faith and parish practice than with dogmatic disputes such as the one the Archbishop represents. John Cardinal Wright, prefect of the Vatican's Congregation for the Clergy. explained in a recent interview why Archbishop Lefebvre raises greater dangers than other dissidents such as the German theologian Hans Küng.

"Archbishop Lefebvre is a 'captain in Israel,' an Archbishop who can ordain priests and consecrate bishops." Cardinal Wright said. "He can start a

From his seminary in Econe, Switzerland, the Archbishop has continued to train and ordain his own priests, against the explicit commands of the Pope. He was suspended by the Pope after he went ahead with 13 ordinations last

By the standards of his scattered adherents, the Archbishop is the sole voice of sanity in a hierarchy full of deceit and falsehood. Father Kelly underscored that theme in a homily in Hicksville. "It is inconceivable," he said, "for many people to understand how one man could be right and all the hundreds of

This question was posed to Dr. Arthur Zaks, the owner of the methadone clinic, which reports it has about 400 patients on its rolls. Dr. Zaks shrugged, then

CORNELL 'COROT' ART FOUND TO BE A COPY

2 Graduates Confirm That Canvas. Donated as $30,000 Gift, Was Only Touched Up by Master

Detective work by two Cornell University graduates has confirmed that a sus-... pect "Corot" painting given to the university in 1959—and appraised at $30,000 at the time-was, in fact, a copy of a Corot painted by one of his students and touched up by the master himself.

The painting was accepted by Cornell in Ithaca, N.Y., as a gift from Jerome K. Ohrbach, the department store heir. A 1929 alumnus, he also donated to Cornell rare books and, in 1972, SI million to renovate Morrill Hall, the oldest building on the campus.

The $30,000 appraisal, it developed last week, was "strongly suspected" by the late Alan R. Solomon, director of the university's museum in 1959, but he did not tell Mr. Ohrbach.

"[In] a matter between Mr. Ohrbach and the Internal Revenue," Dr. Solomon wrote to J. W. Zwingle, then Cornell's vice president, "we would all want to bend over backwards . . . I would be perfectly happy to let the appraisal stand, since it was made by an expert." East Side Methadone Clinic Upsetting Block

Verification Called Frustrating

Thomas W. Leavitt, who currently heads Cornell's Herbert F. Johnson Mueum of Art, said last week that verification of Corot paintings was "one of the American art world's significant frustra-

"It is often said in art circles that there are about 600 original Corot paintings, 3,000 of which are in the United States,"

Dr. Leavitt said. The painting attributed to Jean Baptiste Corot (1796-1875) is named "Le Pont et l'Eglise"—"The Bridge and the Church." According to Cornell records, it was appraised by the firm of Samuel Marx Inc. of New York, which has since gone out

Dr. Leavitt said he understood that Mr. Ohrbach had owned the painting for 17 years before donating it "in good faith." It could not be learned what Mr. Ohrbach had paid for it. Museum officials said the painting had long been in storage, along with some other donated works of dubious origin. They also expressed doubt that it was "Cornell's business" to inform the I.R.S. in such cases, in which a three-year statute of limitation applies.

X-Rays Reveal Brush Strokes

Left Vacant, to Be Parks Under Beame Program

By EDWARD RANZAL

Until large Federal grants become available to resume New York City's urban renewal construction programs, smaller Federal grants will be used to turn nine vacant rubble-strewn and weed-covered renewal sites into parks and playgrounds, Mayor Beame said yes-

The idea, Mr. Beame emphasized, will not cost the city a cent. The city-owned sites originally were cleared for public housing, but the city's fiscal crisis forced construction deferrals and the lots have become dumping grounds for refuse and

The new recreational areas will be used on an interim basis until there is a resumption of urban renewal construction. The program will be financed with Federal community-development grants, a $283,000 allocation for this fiscal year and $500,000 for the next fiscal year, which begins July 1. The individual areas will be operated by local community-based organizations.

Mayor Beame said two Bronx sites had already been transferred to community groups. Within the next few months, five additional sites in the Bronx, one in Brooklyn and one in Manhattan will be cleared and operational.

Two Sites in the Bronx

The two Bronx sites are at 180th Street and Prospect and Mapes Avenues, and at East 156th Street and Hegney Place and St. Ann's Avenue in the South Bronx Model Cities area.

The 180th Street site is in the Twin Parks East Community Development Area that has been turned over to the Mapes Avenue Block Association to be used for baseball and soccer games. The South Bronx site has been turned over to Argus Community Inc. It has landscaped sections as well as two softball fields and bleachers. The city's Housing and Development Administration has the responsibility for clearing, grading and fencing the property and installing recreational equipment. The community group manages the use of the facility, cleans and maintains the grounds and raises funds for the annual cost of insurance.

To help meet the high cost of insurance, the Settlement Housing Fund, a nonprofit organization affiliated with the United Neighborhood Houses of New York, is paying half of the first year's premiums under a master policy carried by the Parks Council.

One thing, at least, is for sure in today's economic climate. You need to be in great shape yourself to survive its slings and arrows with a smile.

Honestly now, can you think of a finer investment than to unwind occasionally with the Rockresorts style of recreation, the kind that's re-creation, too?

Rockresorts spaciousness, Rockresorts emphasis on beautiful, unspoiled landscapes, and of course the world-famous Rockresorts sports amenities can pay handsome dividends. For your family. For your future. And for you.

Take stock, for instance, in the four championship Robert Trent Jones golf courses, superb tennis and golden beaches at Cerromar and Dorado Beach, on Puerto Rico's magnificent north shore. Lapped by silver surf and caressed by gentle trade winds that keep temperatures agreeable year-round.

Wouldn't a few days there tone you up wonderfully?

Or diversify a little. Delightfully. At bluechip Caneel Bay on the island of St. John, with its seven beaches, snorkeling, scuba, and tennis. Caneel has a name as a home from home to the distinguished and quietly famous. Nearby is our beautiful, wild, informal and inexpensive Cinnamon Bay Campground, ideal base for snorkeling or scuba diving. Or hiking in the U.S. Virgin Islands National Park behind.

Or try Little Dix Bay, in the hideaway British Virgin Islands. Play tennis. Swim among rainbow reefs. Skim in water taxis to secluded beaches and islands.

Now add Woodstock Inn's golf, tennis and Vermont charm to your portfolio. A village. Covered bridges. Paul Revere bells. An atmosphere at once bracing and relaxing.

And hear the call of the Tetons, in the high, clear air of Wyoming, where our Jackson Lake Lodge, Jenny Lake Lodge and Colter Bay Village nestle among places with names like String Lake, Snake River and Paintbrush Canyon.

Rally, too, to Mauna Kea on the Big Island of Hawaii, perhaps the most beautiful resort hotel in the world. Where a panoramic golf course follows ancient lava flows, and tennis courts cluster by the sea. And works of art are all around you. (And soon, in 1978, Rockresorts will be opening a magnificent new resort, Kapalua Bay Hotel, on the island of Maui.)

Whenever you decide to come, Rockresorts style, cuisine, service and easy-going good manners will take beautiful care of you from the Caribbean to Hawaii. It's something you can bank on.

Looking to Joe Namath's 13th Season

Until this season, Joe Namath's locker in the Jets' dressing room at Shea Stadium was shielded by a huge gray concrete pillar, the most efficient blocker the quarterback has ever had. The pillar never missed picking up the blitz of newsmen. But this season the lockers were rearranged. Joe Namath now has a locker across the green-carpeted room. away from the pillar. The adjoining locker has been boarded up and a full-length mirror put there. The next locker belongs to Richard Todd, the rookie quarterback. But now that locker was the program for Sunday's game. Joe Namath's picture was on the cover and the blurb read, "The Twelve Seasons of Joe Namath." But for Joe Namath and the Jets, what's important now is the 13th season. Next season. Richard Todd is making the Jets' decision easier. Richard Todd isn't Joe Namath, but he doesn't have to be. That's not the issue. The issue is that Richard Todd has the look season. And if they go with Richard Todd, they won't go

Another Operation?

Joe Namath keeps wondering "why the Jets want me," which is what some others have been wondering for two years. But instead of trading him when his value was much higher, the Jets kept him—last year because they were fooled into thinking they had a playoff contender, this year because they couldn't trust Richard Todd yet, But when this season ends, Al Ward, the Jets' general manager, will sit down and talk to Joe Namath about the 13th season.

Perhaps the knee will simplify Joe Namath's future. Perhaps he'll need his fifth knee operation. If he does, he

But if Joe Namath wants to compete next season and the Jets don't want him, the Jets' disposition of him becomes tricky. They would prefer to trade him for players and/or draft selections to a team of his choice, presumably the Los Angeles Rams, but perhaps the Rams won't want him either. If the Rams don't want him, the quarterback may not want to play anywhere else. If the Rams do want him, they can stall in making a trade, knowing that the Jets will put Joe Namath on waivers in April rather than exercise the option year of his contract and commit themselves to $450,000 for a backup quarterback. If another National Football League team claims Namath on waivers, it's committed to his $450,000 salary. If the quarterback were to clear waivers, the Rams, for example, could negotiate a more reasonable salary with him.

Another possibility, though remote, is that Joe Namath could join a playoff bound team that had its quarterbacks wiped out by injuries in the next few weeks. But waivers would be required.

Lou Holtz, meanwhile, is more concerned with this season than next season. The new coach knows that the Jets are about to play their most compelling "pressure" game against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers on Sunday at Shea

The Point Differential

The Jets' disenchanted fans are accustomed to losing to the established teams. But a loss to an expansion team is a loss of face. Especially an expansion team with an 0-9

Lou Holtz also knows that despite the Jets' two victories over the Buffalo Bills, his team is not improving that much. His honesty deserves applause. After the loss to the Dolphins, he said: "I thought we played poorly over all. Some people gave it a heck of an effort but not nearly enough. The penalties should never happen. Our kicking game was a fiasco." If more coaches told it like it is, more fans would be more patient with them. With a new coach and a new quarterback, the Jets require patience. Even with their 2-7 record, the Jets' differential in points, for and against, is the N.F.L.'s worst this season, as the following shows:

Po	ints For	Points Against	Differential
Jets	76	233	157
Tampa Bay	88	232	144
Seattle	148	262	114
Giants	.79	184	105
een	£11

That's what pro football in New York has come to - the Jets and the Giants being ranked with two expansion teams. The pressure game for the Giants will be the showdown with the Seattle Seahawks on Nov. 28 in the Meadowlands, with the Giants possibly 0-11 by then.

"The Jets and the Giants," says one horrified New Yorker,
"are going to make me a soccer fan."

Don't laugh. Everybody talks about how soccer does not have enough scoring. But in nine games, the Jets have scored only 14 times (nine touchdowns, five field goals) and the Giants only 13 times (10 touchdowns, three field goals). That's an average of 1.6 scores per game for the Jets, 1.4 for the Giants. But with 65 goals in 24 North American Soccer League games, the Cosmos averaged 2.7 scores per game. There's a lesson there scmewhere.

It was believed that repeated pound-ing of the knee this season-Namath was dumped a dozen times in the first seven games-had created the problem. Kept Out by Surgery

The knee has reacted badly since 1965. After every game, Namath would spend part of Monday being ministered to by Snedeker, But by Tuesday he usually was on the field working out.

But after the loss against Baltimore on Oct. 24, he was unable to practice until Friday, and Coach Lou Holtz nominated the rookie, Richard Todd, to start the following Sunday.

Last week Namath remained sorelineed and Holtz decided by Wednesday

"It appears Todd will start this Sunday, too," said Holtz.

Twenty-three days after Namath became pro football's most celebrated "bonus baby" by signing with the Jets on Jan. 2, 1965, he underwent his first ! operation on the right knee. Some cartilage was removed and ligaments were

"I don't believe Joe would go through another operation," said Snedeker.
"But it doesn't seem as if one is needed. The knee is stable. It's just the sur-

Even if the arthroscope proves negative, other clubs in the National Football League probably would question how reliable his knees were; they are not responding to treatment.

"Arthritis is simply an inflammation," explained Snedeker. "You can decrease it, unless you have trauma and overuse. When Joe plays, there is trauma and overuse of his right knee." Meanwhile, the newest Jet, Keith

Denson, was dropped by Holtz after his second fumble on a kickoff return in two weeks. The move was in contrast to last year, when virtually no changes were made, or players dropped, despite errors week after

Pitt Is No. 1 in A.P. Poll As Michigan Falls to 4th

Pittsburgh became the first major college football team from the Northeast to be ranked No. 1 in the nation in 17 years yesterday when the Associated Press panel of 63 sports writers and broadcasters named the undefeated and untied Panthers to the top spot in the 10th weekly poll of the season.

Pitt moved up to second after its third victory of the season and re-mained there behind undefeated Michigan for six weeks. Then Purdue upset Michigan, 16-14, last Saturday as Pitts-burgh was beating Army, 37-7, for the Panthers' ninth triumph of the year.

Coach Johnny Majors's Pittsburgh team received 49 first-place votes and 1,326 points in the poll. Each of the 15 teams in the nation and points are based on 20 for first, 18 for second, then 10 to 1 points for sixth through 15th places. .

Michigan dropped from first to fourth place. The University of California, Los Angeles, moved up to second and Southern California to third. U.C.L.A., which is undefeated but once tied, re-ceived seven first-place votes and 1.093 points. The Trojans, with one loss, had television. Because each game is an unscripted, unrehearsed program with built-in suspense, lasting up to three hours and extensively publicized in advance by other media, it has natural advantages over other types of programming in attracting attention and filling time. To sell advertising time, television stations needed a large audience; to get a large audience, millions of sets had to be sold; major sports events played an enormous role in generating the desire to buy sets (in-cluding the second wave, color sets) and in building the viewer habit.

Pay television faces a similar situation. It needs subscribers (in effect, ticket buyers) rather than advertisers, and the best available come-on is sports, for the same reasons that conventional television found sports so attractive. Once established, pay television may or may not lean on sports as a primary product, but to get it rolling no other type of programming can be so quickly and so widely effective. But this implies the events the public now gets "free" will eventually shift to a "pay" medium. To prevent this from happening, the F.C.C. has made many complicated regulations that have the effect of chilling pay-televi-sion development. And Congress, which has allowed sports leagues to act collectively in arranging national packages for conventional television (by granting antitrust exemptions), has not given permission for arranging comparable packages on pay television,

Park, the financially-troubled, elegant race track of another era, was sold today in a $13.3 million deal that gave control of the historic facility to the City of Haleah and a New Jersey developer, stockholders announced. #### All Kinds of Consolation for Giants, But the Biggest One Escapes Them

PLEASANTVILLE, N.Y., Nov. 8-The bottom line on the Giants is 0-9 after yesterday's 9-3 loss to the Dallas Cowboys. But even at the bottom, things are looking up.

"I thought we did some good things," said Coach John McVay after his team came within a tearaway jersey of upsetting Dallas. "It's all meaningless, of course, but those are the things you have to do to win."

The Giants did many things to win yesterday that they hadn't been doing in their eight previous defeats. They established a running game because McVay did away wi th many of the complicated blocking assignments the offensive line could not handle and returned to the simpler strategy of just going straight ahead and knocking defenders down.

I-Formation Used More

They threw the ball long, and although Craig Morton, who had a fine game at quarterback in his old home. didn't connect with any of his fardownfield receivers, it was only be-cause the Cowboy secondary is one of the best in the National Football

Morton did not always drop straight back on passing downs, sometimes rolling out to negate the Cowboy rush.

The team used the I-formation more, gave the ball to Larry. Csonka more and they scored for the first time in three games.
All of 3 points.

It could have been more had No. 38 been wearing a tearaway blue jersey. Bob Tucker, the Giants' tight end, had his jersey held by Cliff Harris, a Cow-boy safetyman, in the end zone on the fourth-down play from the Dallas 6 that ended with Morton, looking for an open receiver, being hit by Harvey Martin and fumbling.

Official Looking Elsewhere

"I had him beat and all he could do was grab my jersey," said Tucker," "irate" that the back judge, Ben Tompkins (a Fort Worth attorney), failed to

Game films showed Harris clearly holding Tucker by the shirt, but Tomp-kins seemed to be looking at Jimmy Robinson (whom Morton also was looking for) in another corner of the end zone. It would have been difficult not to call the penalty, however, had Tucker been wearing a tearaway jersey (no N.F.L. team wears them) and Harris had been standing there holding a blue

The penalty would have given the Giants a first down inside the Cowboy 3-yard line (defensive holding is an automatic first down and the penalty in this case would have been half the distance to the goal line) with more than a minute left. There would have been time to score the winning touchdown against the leading team in the N.F.C. East, albeit a team that played as if it was looking ahead to the Super Bowl.

"What's done is done," said McVay, who refused to comment on the play, preferring instead to dwell on all the things the Giants did well, things that in the long run may be more important than whether the team's won-lost record is 0-9 or 1-8.

Foremost was the work of the offensive linemen. Their coach, Ray Wietecha, said they played their best overall game of the season. McVay, who inherited this team two weeks ago today from Bill Arnsparger, eliminated many of the more sophisticated blocking assignments, like cross-blocking, doubleteaming and trapping.

Meanwhile the defense, which has played well on occasion all season, had a good game, too, especially in the secondary, which was more aggressive than usual (actually knocking down several Roger Staubach passes). It could be that McVay is succeeding in turning this team around. Next Sunday's game against the Washington Redskins at Giants Stadium could be interesting.

Giants Held Only Twice

Giants' offensive line, which was leading the league in holding penalties with 25 after eight games, added only two against the Cowboys (John Hicks and Ralph Hill, who was substituting for the injured Karl Chandler at center). . . Chandler said his back spasms bad eased and he might be able to play against Washington. . . Bill Ellenbogen, Tom Mullen, George Martin and Robinson had sprained ankles and probably will miss some practice this week, but all are expected to play Sunday . . . Giants were successful on third-down conversions nine of 17 times against Dallas, their best effort of the season, but they still have not scored a touchdown since the second period at Minnesota on Oct. 17. . . . Csonka's 27 carries for 89 yards were his best figures as a Giant. He now has 451 yards and Doug Kotar (17 for 74 at Dallas) has 453. The leading rush-

Issue and Debate: Should U.S. Encourage Putting Sports on Pay TV

exactly that, It is paid for by consumers en masse: All the money spent for advertising and production is added to the price of the products advertised, so that some of the nonfans are subsi-dizing the fans, while each fan pays an unidentifiable fee.

So the key questions become: In the long run, would more sports on pay television mean more or less available to the fan? Would such development have a vital effect on the economy of either industry? And would it affect significantly what's available to the nonfan public?

For More Pay TV

The basic arguments of the sports establishment, expressed repeatedly by the commissioners of various major sports, make three points: that the glathe Super Bowl will never leave conventional television; that thousands of other events, not available now or ever on conventional television, would be-come available if pay television thrived, and that, unless sports can find a new source of income after living through the current period of salary and other cost inflation and ever-higher ticket prices, there will be fewer teams and fewer games for the public to see, on television or off.

On the first point, the sports people guarantee of sen-interest and are willing to accept restrictions in principle. They say they want their showcase events to be on conventional television, and always will, because the combined benefits of sponsor financing and stimulation of fan interest will always outweigh pay-television considerations. They would not fight regulations to keep specific events on free as an example. Few major fights are shown on conventional television; most are piped into theaters (for ticket buyers), out of F.C.C. jurisdiction. The practical consequence to the public is a choice between an expensive ticket . to a theater, and no show at all.

On the second point, they cite boxing

Further, countless events that many sports fans might be willing to pay for at modest prices do not warrant conventional television coverage. Examples are regular-season and some playoff games in basketball and hockey; tennis tournaments; regular-season baseball games; soccer matches; track meets, and various college (and even high school) events.

In the long run, many sports promoters feel, restricting pay-television development will not increase or even maintain the amount of free-television sports available but will lead to a decrease. Such erosion has already occurred. The New York Yankees, in the biggest of all television markets, were televising 126 regular-season games as recently as 1965. This year they televised 72. While that's an extreme case, there has been little change in base-ball's local-television patterns over the last decade, and more than half the teams televise less than half their road schedule and very little of their home

On the third point, sports promoters identify pay television, in whatever form, as the last possible frontier for economic development, especially in the smaller big-league cities. Conventional-television receipts are probably near a peak, and any sizable drop would be extremely damaging. Ticket prices and seating capacities can't go much higher, and there are continued increases in all costs, including those rises that result from players' gaining free-agent status. Unless this new source can be tapped, an eventual contraction of the major-league map may be inevitable. Many college football teams, caught in a cost squeeze, might also be saved by this new outlet.

er last year was Joe Dawkins with 438.

On philosophic grounds, it may also be argued that any system that pro-motes direct choice by the consumer and direct reward to the promoter— where the buyer makes choices and the nonbuyer is not involved-is more appropriate to a free-enterprise society than programming dictated by network-and-agency considerations.

Against More Pay TV

A fundamental argument against more sports on pay television centers on a broader issue than concern the sports events themselves. On the sports level, it is asserted, making it easier to put events on pay television will inevitably lead to a large-scale shift away from conventional television, regardless of sincere promises or currently devised regulations. Once the economic rewards of pay television exceed the rewards from conventional television, the argument goes, promoters will find some way to evade or change regulations that now seem sufficient. So the more general argument is this: If sports programming can be used to build pay television into a strong and successful rival of conventional television, the resulting system will eventually make the public as a whole pay

Further, though advocates of pay television have long argued that conventional programming sacrifices par-ticular interests for mass appeal, opponents answer that direct-pay events would seek the widest possible audience just as eagerly. If it is true that conventional broadcasting neglects opera, art films, local sports, educational programs and other limited sufficients. al programs and other limited-audience features because they are not econ cally rewarding enough, pay televi would bypass them for the same son, the argument goes, and cor trate on getting the glamour event

No one can prove what pat would evolve if pay television widespread, whether with regar sports or anything else; one can predict, assert or speculate. Those oppose making it easier for spor be the spearhead of change say:

"We know the existing system created unprecedented viewing of tunities for the public and large ceipts for major sports; we don't l what tampering with it would less Conventional television cert carries an enormous amount of s and tends to focus on the bi events of widest interest. A new tem, with unpredictable conseque is more likely to be worse than be

The Outlook

The outcome of a struggle tha been going on for many years wi decided strictly on lobbying muscl to now, the television networks, stations and theater owners carried more weight in Washii than sports promoters, pay-telev operators or seekers of fresh proming. Encouragement of sports or television will come only if the a shift in that power alignment

In any case, events like the Series, the Super Bowl, the Kent Derby and the Rose Bowl are likely to leave conventional televi under any foreseeable system. without pay television, local-intere routine sports programming is it o stagnate or decrease; with it, the sports events themselves and availability on home screens w probably increase.

So the Miami wide receivers will be a new pairing, Freddie Solomon and Duriel Harris, a rookie. Howard Twiliey, who had paired with Moore through Miami's first seven games, was lost for the year the Sunday before

The Steelers, who dropped four of their first five games, have pushed their backs away from the wall thanks to the defensive players. They have not been scored on in the last 13 periods and they have not given up a touchdown in 17.

After the Steelers beat Kansas City, 45-0, the Chiefs' Macarthur Lane said, "That is about as good as I've ever seen anybody play. I'd say that might be the best defense in history."

The Dolphins cannot expect their running game to go far against Pittsburgh. So Bob Griese, who certainly can pass but prefers not to, will be throwing the football to Harris and to Solomon, a second-year pro on the sick list most of this season.

Griese said, "Freddie has the potential to be great. It's important to know what receivers will do in critical circumstances, how they react to the unexpected. With younger guys you wait longer to see how they react. Then you react to them." Good luck, Bob.

O. J. Simpson was appalled by being thrown out of the Bills-Patriots game by Gordon McCarter, the referee, after Simpson took two wild swings at Mel Lunsford, the defensive end. Ejection was a first in football for Simpson.

He said, "The whistle had blown and two of the guys on me let me go. But this guy (Lunsford) kept me and slung me on my head. You can't allow a guy to hit me after the whistle." Simpson thought Lunsford, too.

to the people who are playing well," said Holtz,

Presumably, the coach included Todd among such players. He not only connected on half his pass attempts (many of his passes were dropped), but also gave a new dimension to the quarter-

Once, on a fourth-and-1, he sliced for 3 yards. Another time, on a thirdand-1, he rolled to his right, saw his receiver covered and ran for 6.

Holtz would prefer to have seen Todd run out of bounds, rather than take off like a running back. The coach does not plan to set up running plays for Todd, but does want him able to scram-should have been sent to the sidelines, or better than that both sides given offsetting personal foul penalties and no one thrown out. Lunsford was dressed and gone before reporters could reach him after the game.

"I want him to make it as a thrower," said Holtz.

Mike Haynes returned a punt 81 yards for a Patriot touchdown which brought to mind a play last summer in a preseason game. Haynes, a rookie, made a 71-yard return but spiked the ball at the 3-yard line thinking he was in the end zone. No touchdown, "My friends still ride me and call me 'Spike,''' said Haynes.

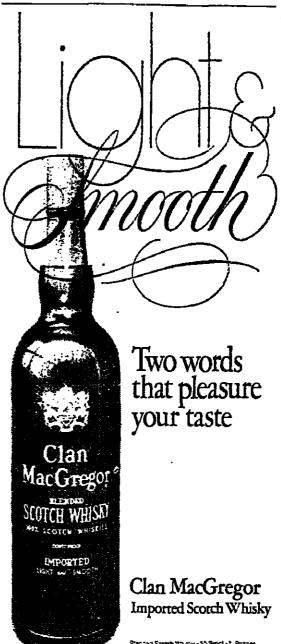

Sammy White, the Vikings' rookie receiver, did something similar against Detroit on Sunday. Heading for the end zone after catching a 52-yard pass from Fran Tarkenton, White held the ball aloft in one hand and Lem Barney tackled him. There was a fumble and no

White caught six other passes, two for touchdowns. What did Bud Grant, the Minnesota coach, have to say? "He won't do that again."

Tommy Prothro, the San Diego coach, recorded another vote for Baltimore after the Colts trounced the Chargers, 37-21, leading earlier by 37-7. "The Colts," said Prothro, "are the best we've played and I've never been as impressed with a quarterback as I was with Bert Jones. He's a fantastic passer"

A little practice on the sidelines helped the Cardinals, another playoff contender with backs against the wall, to get by the improving Eagles, 17-14, without their injured offensive starts, Mel Gray and Terry Metcalf. The winning points came on a 20-yard field goal by Jim Bakken.

It was his fourth attempt, Poor snaps It was his fourth attempt. Poor snaps from the center, Tom Brahaney, to the holder, Roger Wehrli, ruined the first two and Bakken kicked the third way wide of the goal post. "After the third." said Bakken, "the three of us got together and practiced snaps. We got our timing and coordination and our thirther It takes there are a statement of the rhythm. It takes three men to coordinate a field goal. When you make it, all three take the credit. When you miss all three have to take the blame."

The powerful and undefeated Penn State teams under Coach Joe Paterno never managed to reach the top although the 1969 Nittany Lions were second and the 1968 Penn Staters were second in the United Press International poll and third in the A.P. list. Penn State's 1973 team, possibly Paterno's best, finished fifth.

The U.P.I. will release its poll this afternoon. Pittsburgh is expected to be named No. 1 on that list, which is a vote of major college coaches.

Frank Burns, the Rutgers coach, said his team deserved to be in the top 20. Speaking at the New York Football Writers luncheon at the New York University Club, Burns said: "I do feel we deserve a higher ranking. We've got a hell of a football team."

Burns said: "It gets me perturbed. Writers in the East even look down on teams in the East. I think Eastern football is put down and I think it's time we get recognized."

Colgate of Hamilton, N.Y., and Southwestern Louisiana, the only other undefeated and united major teams, were not mentioned in the A.P. balloting. Both of these teams play schedules that apparently do not impress the

N.B.A.'s New Format Gives Home Clubs a New Edge

Long plane rides, often late at night, long waits at airports, meals at midnight and unfamiliarity with visiting courts have always made it very dif-ficult for pro basketball teams to win on the road. It may be even worse this season with the National Basketball Associa-About tion's new format, in which Basketball four times. With the season almost three weeks old, 15 of the 22 teams are playing .500 or under over all. The Milwaukee Bucks have lost all five road games, the Atlanta Hawks and Seattle SuperSonics have each been beaten in all four and the Chicago Bulls and Kansas City Kings, three each. Visiting teams have won 29 percent, 27 victories and 65 defeats.

"Some of the losing is because teams are feeling their way and breaking in new players," said Red Auerbach, the president and general manager of the Boston Celtics, who won their first four games and lost the next four. "But the big thing is the new schedule. It's terrible, The Knicks and the Celtics were violently Knicks and the Celtics were violently opposed to the format. It avoids building up rivalries within conferences and the traveling costs are prohibitive."
"But more important, the wear and tear on the players is bad, they're in Houston one night and Boston the next. It hasn't really shown yet, but wait until the season progresses, watch the toll it takes. The format will have to be changed next season."

The Sonics have a 21-game home winning streak over the last two seasons and the Trail Blazers have won 12 in a row at home.

The problem of winning on the road drew similar comment from Al Attles, the Golden State Warriorss' coach, and Al Bianchi, the assistant coach of the Phoenix Suns, who have lost five of six road games.

"What disturbs me most," said Attles, "is that we have lost three home games and this season, more than ever, it's going to be more difficult to win on the road. You just can't afford to lose at home."

Bianchi said: "winning at home will be extra important this season, because there is going to be a lot of losing on the road."

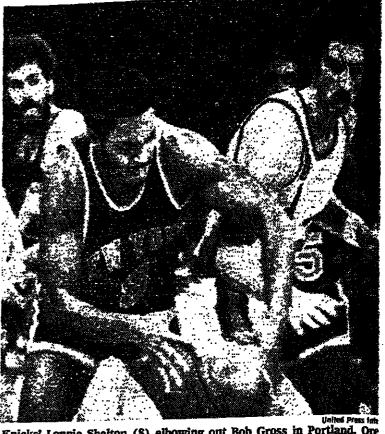

Spencer Haywood, who missed the Portland game with a bruised left calf, will not play tonight when the Knicks oppose the Washington Bullets at Mad-ison Square Garden. After an examination by Dr. Jeffrey Minkoff, the team doctor, there were indications that Hay-wood might be sidelined for a week to 10 days. Bill Bradley will also miss the Bullet game with tendonitis of the right knee. The Knicks, however, are expect-ed to have John Gianelli back and to reactivate Butch Beard. If they do, they will have to cut a player. Beard, who underwent surgery for knee arthritis during the summer, has been on the injured reserve list.

The Knicks returned from their Western swing with two victories and three defeats and Lonnie Shelton as their center. The 6-foot-8-inch rookie from the University of Oregon earned accolades from Denver to Portland from coaches, opposing players, general managers an dtelevision viewers for his play in the last four games. In those games he scored 62 points, grabbed 44 rebounds, blocked 19 shots and made 19 steals, six each against the Denver Nuggets and Los Angeles Lakers. In the Knicks' 119-93 loss to the Trail Blazers Sunday night, Shelton scored 15 points, grabbed 14 rebounds, made four steals and blocked seven shots, league high for the season for one game. But Shelton showed a glaring weakness in foul-ing too much. He picked up five fouls in each of the road games.

The Atlanta Hawks, in need of a big man for several seasons, have been get-ing some surprising play from Tom from the University of Hawaii by way of Minnesota and Southern Idaho Junior College. With Steve Hawes sidelined with a cracked shin bone and Randy Denton slowed with a back injury, the 6-11 Barker got a chance to play and responded with S9 points and S1 re-bounds in the last five games. His opponents during that stretch were Tom Burleson of the Seattle SuperSonics, Bill Walton of the Trail Blazers, Artis Gilmore of the Chicago Bulls and Bob Lanier of the Detroit Pistons. . . . Twenty-two players from the now-defunct American Basketball Association are on N.B.A. rosters. . . . Doug Collins of the 76ers reinjured a chronic sprain in his right foot and sat out Sunday's game in Seattle.

Rick Barry of the Golden State War-riors has made all 40 of his free throws. The league record is 57 in a row last season by Calvin Murphy of the Hou-ston Rockets. . . . Paul Silas of the Denver Nuggets needs 17 points to reach the 10,000 career scoring mark. When he makes them he will be the only active player with 10,000 points and 10,000 rebounds. Ten players in N.B.A. history have reached the double plateau with Wilt Chamberlain the career leader with 31,419 points and 23,924 rebounds.

Knicks' Lonnie Shelton (8) elbowing out Bob Gross in Portland, Ore ing scramble for loose ball Sunday night. Shelton scored 15 points, rebounds, four steals and blocked seven shots in game New York lost,

Wood, Field & Stream: Hunt By a Latter-Day Deerslayer

By NELSON BRYANT

CLAREMONT, N.H. - When galeforce winds and bitter cold drove Han-son Carroll of Norwich, Vt., and me down from a backpacking, muzzle-loading deer hunt on Mount Sunapee. I continued my quest alone in the low-

For five more days I hanted all the areas I had discovered when I lived in Claremont, and at the end of that time had not seen a single deer. By then, the urge to take a deer with my muzzle-loading .58-caliber rifle had be-come a virtual obsession, and even when the regular deer season opened I continued with my so-called primitive

Black-powder (as opposed to the smokeless powder used in modern rifle and pistol cartridges and shotgun shells), muzzle-loading hunting has enjoyed a remarkable increase in popularity in recent years, and many states a special bow-and-arrow and muzzle-loading season for deer.

Such a season is attractive to some because comparatively few hunters are abroad at that time. Others, perhaps entranced as I was by the writings of James Fenimore Cooper as youths, find special pleasure in casting their own bullets, making their own powder horns and sometimes their own rifles, and setting forth as the Deerslayer did.

By the end of a week of hunting, however, I was reminded, as I had been so many times before, that the Deerslayer's talents afield were superior to My favorite way of going after deer

Special to The New York Times ter, often sitting for long periods in some likely spot. When the terrain lends itself to them, deer drives—in which groups of men walk rapidly through forest and thicket pushing deer to other men, on stand—put more meat on the table, but that procedure calls for less skill and lacks the romance of still-hunting.

Despite my preference for still-hunt-ing, I know I will never become truly skillful at it, for I am unable, no matter how hard I try, to focus all my attention consistently on the endeavor. People I love, places I have visited, strains of music, lines of poetry creep into my head, and the forest before me and its sounds fade away.

One day on this year's hunt the weather turned around, and fog shrouded the juniper-dotted hill on which I stood behind an old stone wall that wandered up through the woods from the meadows far below. From the wall I picked up a flat rock and thought of the man who had placed it there more then a century before. And then, all hunting instincts shed, I thought of Hamlet with Yorick's skull in his hand, and for the remainder of that afternoon, no matter how manfully I tried to suppress them, lines, fragments and sometimes entire soliloquies from the play haunted me. I did not emerge-from their spell until several quickly spaced rifle shots boomed from the spaced rule states numbed from the fiatlands below—someone zeroing his rifle for the opening of the regular deer season the following day, no doubt— and I picked my way down through

Giacomin Nears Career Shutout Mark

Attention: Rangers, Attention: Emile Francis, St. Louis Blues' general manager. Look who's leading the National Hockey League goalies in shutouts. That gray-haired, 12-year veteran, Ed Giacomin, that's who. Giacomin leads the Detroit Red Wings to Nassau Coliseum tonight to play the Islanders. A little over a year ago, Giacomin was claimed on waivers Hockey from the Rangers (when Francis was their boss), and now the 37-year-old goaltender is off to his finest start in 12 N.H.L. seasons. Sunday night in Atlanta, Giacomin gained his third shutout of this campaign, as the Wings tied the Flames, 0-0, equaling his total for the last two seasons in which he appeared in 70 games. Giacomin, with 54 career shutouts, is within two of Tony Esposito's mark for active goalies, and he holds the league's fourth-best goals-against

"He's still got a lot of life in him," said Billy Dea, the assistant coach of the Wings. "Eddie's been in the nets for all four of our wins."

When Giacomin and Phil Myre, Atlanta's goalie, battled to their scoreless tie, it was the first in the league since Nov. 23, 1974, when Pittsburgh and Los Angeles failed to score. It was the 1986 make the in NUT history the 139th such tie in N.H.L. history.

Giacomin was in the nets when the Wings blanked the Islanders, 5-0, Oct. 22 in Detroit. It seemed a good possibil-ity that he would be pitted against Glenn Resch, the Islanders' netminder, who leads the league with a 1.71 goalsagainst average.

Right behind Resch in the goalie's statistical race is Gerry Desjardins of Buffalo. The former Islander goalie has a 1.75 average in 10 games. Third is Ken Dryden of the Montreal Canadiens,

After Giacomin come Billy Smith of the Islanders, 2.57; Mike Palmateer of Toronto, 2.67; Gilles Gilbert of Boston. 2.71; Myre, 2.81; Rogie Vachon of Los Angeles, 2.94; Gary Simmons of Cleveland, 3.00; John Davidson of the Rangers, 3.07; Dunc Wilson of Pittsburgh, 3.09; Michel Plasse of Colorado. 3.13; Esposito, 3.14, and Bernie Parent of Philadelphia, 3.16.

Though the N.H.L. season has yet to reach the quarter mark, two highscoring forwards are making fans think about goal-a-game records again. Steve Schutt's 16 goals in 16 games for Montreal and Don Murdoch's 15 goals in 15 games for the Rangers are the ones most responsible for that.

Maurice Richard, the Canadiens' Rocket, was the last player to accomplish the feat when he scored 50 goals in a 50-game season in 1944-45. Phil Esposito, the Rangers' captain, came close in a 78-game season when he scored 76 for the Boston Bruins.

In total points, Montreal's Guy Lafleur, last season's leader, heads the list with 13 goals and 13 assists for 26 points, while Shutt is 16-9 for 25, Marcel Dionne of the Kings, 12-12 for 24, and Larry Robinson of the Cana-diens, 3-20 for 23.

A Toronto court judge ruled yesterday that trials for assault charges against four Philadelphia Flyers would be held in June after the clos N.H.L. season.

A defense attorney argued January dates for Don Sale: Watson, Mel Bridgman and Bo contending this would cause "a disruption to the hockey clu would be "punishing the team season when it should be conce on playing hockey."

Pierre Larouche, the Penguin has been reinstated by the tea a meeting with his coach.

Larouche was demoted to : in the American League and th pended last week amid reports : Penguins were unhappy with hi ness for practice session and h luster effort on the ice.

Larouche, who leads the tea five goals and 15 points this ye sent down after reporting 45: late for a practice. However, he to go and he was suspended. L: has missed two games without Larouche scored 53 goal

Anderson Apologizes to 'Dear Thurma'

DAYTON, Ohio, Nov. 8 (UPI)-The Cincinnati Reds' manager, Sparky Anderson, has sent a letter of apology to the New York Yankees' catcher, Thurman Munson, for remarks he made following the final game of the World

Anderson was asked to compare Johnny Bench, voted the Series' most valuable player, with Munson. "Don't ask me to compare Johnny Beach with any other catcher," Anderson replied. "Don't embarrass anyone."

Munson, at the rear of the interview room when Anderson spoke, later expressed heated displeasure with the remark by Anderson.

The letter read:

Dear Thurman: First of all, I hope you will accept my sincere apology. I had no intention of trying to belittle you or any other catcher. What I said about comparing Bench to a catcher, I have said not only th. but in other years.

Thurman. I might be at faspeaking so strongly on Bench. t is the way I feel. I sure hope neverly purposely try to belittle : I only hope you will know h cere I am about this letter. Sincerely, Sparky."

winter racing dates which the Board of Business Regulation awarded to Gulfstream, a rival track in Hallandale. The track is appealing the decision in the district court of appeals which had delayed ruling until a final purchase agreement was reached.

Brunetti said today that the track could survive without the January-to-March racing dates, but added that it might try to get racing dates on a rotation basis during that period.

He also said he would take steps to lure the best Eastern thoroughbreds back to the track, which dates back to 1925.

Good Day for Two Riders

Two jockeys enjoyed spectacular success at East Coast thoroughbred tracks yesterday. At Aqueduct, Angel Cordero Jr. rode four winners and finished first with a fifth mount, which was disqualified Down in Maryland, meanwhile, Chris McCarron, who established a single-season record by riding 546 winners as an apprentice in 1974, scored with five mounts at Laurel Race Course.

Cordero opened the afternoon by capturing both races of the daily double. He won the first with Cunning Trick, who paid $16 for $2 to win, and then rallied in the second with Cardinal George ($7.40). The double paid $49.20. He then scored in the fourth race with Christoforo: in the sixth with Queen's Gambit, the disqualified mount, and in the eighth, the $35,000-added Tempted for 2-year-old fillies, with Pearl Necklace. McCarron started by finishing out of the money in the first race at Laurel but then brought home Happy Crowd ($3.40) to complete a $60.60 daily dou-

bie. The 21-year-old also won with Chesapeake City in the third, Legal Chambers in the sixth Shark's Jaws in the seventh and Gelato in the eighth.

Youth Leaves for Kentucky Nelson Bunker Hunt's Youth, the 10length winner of Saturday's $150,000 Washington International left Laurel for a Kentucky stud farm. The 3-yearold colt will stand at Gainesway Farm in Lexington.

Meadowlands Joins H.T.A. Special to The New York Times

EAST RUTHERFORD, N. J., Nov. 8-The Meadowlands Race Track became today the 50th member of the Harness Tracks of America, the association of major parimutuel trotting tracks in the United States and Canada,

John H. Krumpe, executive director . of the Meadowlands, was named to the H.T.A.'s board of directors.

Meanwhile, the track meted out two suspensions to Denis Filion, 34-year-old brother of Herve, the nation's leading driver. He received 10 days for driving High Frontier in the seventh race last Thursday night with "lack of judgment and lack of effort in the stretch drive." He got five days for an interference infraction while driving Timeless Title on Friday night.

Today American companies doing business abroad are reaping one-third of their profits overseas — in Deutsche Marks, Guilders, Francs, Yen, and a hundred other currencies. Here's how First Chicago, a $19 billion banking corporation, can help make your nultinational investments more productive.

merican companies abroad continue to enjoy long-term growth the percentage of profits flowing in om foreign operations. Despite worldide economic instability, these commies, on the average, performed gnificantly better than companies infined to our shores.

The figures are startling. During the 160's, U.S. companies invested $33.5 llion abroad, while returning $63.7 llion of income to the U.S. During this me period, direct investments owned U.S. companies increased in value m $31.9 billion to $86.1 billion. In ese ten years, all U.S. capital invested road has increased in value more an 11/2 times at the same time it was oducing an average 10% yearly turn on investment.

This, in short, is the international ie. And here's how First Chicagoith the fourth largest network of overeas installations of all American banks -can help you cut yourself a piece of it.

Knowing the territory.

When investing or trading abroad, ou can't know too much about the ountries and companies you're dealig with. Of course you'll do your own padework. But a second opinion from first-hand source can add weight to our proposals, confidence to your ecisions.

First Chicago is prepared to supply ou with a vast body of organized, curent information pertinent to your overeas ventures. Our country experts are n-the-spot, in constant touch. They an help explain fast-breaking political nd economic developments abroad. hey can clarify what may seem to be onfusing regulations on investments; rofit remittances, foreign exchange ontrols, and customs requirements which can change from day to day.

"Companies that succeed in international business," says Bill McDonough, head of the International Banking Department, "understand that first-hand

U.S. companies exporting to and importing from the world are on firm ground, too. We know the countries they're doing business in, the companies they're doing business with knowledge of local markets makes all the difference between profit and loss."

"First-hand knowledge of local markets makes all the difference between profit and loss."

What are the "deposit" regulations for Brazilian importers? Do all imports into Ecuador have to be on a letter of credit basis? Are bank performance guaranties the same in every country? This kind of data is on instant call, along with historical trends, current year estimates, and forecast information—the facts you need to plan objectively and arrive at sound decisions.

Will surety bonds replace standby letters of credit for bid and performance requirements in the Middle East? Is a licensing, a franchise or a manufacturer's representation the best way to do business in England? These kinds of specific questions can be researched for you by our overseas staff—reports made to your order, delivered for your eyes alone.

And when it's time for action, knowing the territory is indispensable to conducting business with dispatch. For a grain exporter, First Chicago was able to assess risks, perform the necessary mechanics and commit for a major export financing immediately, over the phone, hours ahead of the other banks in the bidding.

Sowing seed money worldwide.

At First Chicago we believe that loans to finance international activities are among the safest loans a bank can make.

One reason is that U.S. companies investing overseas are the cream of the crop. Almost invariably, their expansion abroad is a natural evolution of their strong market positions at home. They have the vitality and vision to move, and they move sure-footedly. They're businesslike companies, productive companies. Their track record is impressive.

We're highly experienced in implementing EximBank, FCIA, and other forms of financial quaranties and insurance, and we work to minimize the expense to the borrower.

A multinational electronics firm with over 20 subsidiaries in foreign countries needed to assure working capital on a worldwide basis. We designed a single $55 million worldwide credit facility that allowed the company or any of its subsidiaries to borrow in U.S. dollars, in Eurodollars, or in the local foreign currency.

Across the country, First Chicago offers U.S. companies marketing and trading abroad full international support services and multi-currency loans at our head office in Chicago, our international (Edge Act) offices in New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco, as well as direct contact with 81 installations in 37 countries around the world.

The basic stuff of international trade.

Whether you're producing overseas or trading from the U.S., the smooth operation of your business is dependent upon scores of documents, many of them written in strange tongues. Bills of lading, letters of credit, acceptances, insurance policies, customs declarations, receipts, credit reports—these are the practical, down-to-earth business transactions that are the basic stuff of international operations and trade.

First Chicago international trade specialists have the skills and experience to provide you with quick, enorfree service in the vital area of international documentation. And, because their expertise ranges across the whole of international business, they may provide you with extra dividends as well.

Recently we issued a timely letter of credit for one of our customers, a Los Angeles manufacturer of custom woven wood shades, that helped him achieve a $500,000 saving on a purchase of exotic woods from the Philippines.

"U.S. direct investment abroad continues to rise," notes William McDonough, Executive Vice President and International Department head at First Chicago. "Net book value amounted to $133.2 billion at the end of 1975, up $14.4 billion from the year before."

Paying and receiving in 100 currencies.

Cash management abroad can be an exasperating experience. Multiple currencies, customs, government regulations, exchange and control fluctuations, international mails all conspire to obscure where your cash is and to interfere with your efforts to reduce

First Chicago specialists have been through this mill, and they know their way around it. We can advise you on how to create your own system for the collection, control and disbursement of international funds. One of our custom: ers, with subsidiaries in 12 foreign countries, needed financing in nine different currencies that could be interchanged, if necessary, on short notice. We designed a $57 million revolving credit that provided access to all nine currencies with just one loan agreement.

If you require, we can work with you to organize and service international lock boxes, multi-currency accounts, cash letter services, zero balance accounts and many other methods of getting cash back in hand where it can earn more profits for your company.

Bringing home the bacon.

American companies operating abroad brought home $63.7 billion in 10 years. Recently, new accounting procedures have required that profits returned to the U.S. must be declared in current exchange rates each period. Thus, if you plan to repatriate 10 million Francs worth of dollars, and the Franc falls in value, the profits you declare on each period's balance sheet will be proportionately shrunk.

Foreign exchange experts at First Chicago can help you filter exchange fluctuations out of your balance sheet -by analysis of your foreign exchange exposure, by daily reporting of spot and forward exchange rates, and by short or medium range forecasting to help you optimize money movements. And our offices abroad can provide the exchange risk coverage to assure that you bring the bacon home.

If you're involved in or planning to help your company to a big slice of the international pie, you may be interested in our 368-page international trade guide for everything from shipping to taxes.

Hotly Contested Battle Waging for Company's Control Between Mobil and Cadillac Fairview

By ROBERT LINDSEY

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 8-The hotly conested battle for control of the Irvine Company, an obscure California land developer, took an unexpected twist today as it became known that the use of sealed bids to determine the company's eventual owner was being explored. Irvine is the target of a tense take-over battle between the Mobil Oil Company and the Cadillac Fairview Corporation Ltd. of Toronto, and fast-moving developments today prompted Judge James Judge of the Orange County Superior Court to postpone action on the sale of the company until at least Wednesday.

Meanwhile, Irvine said that it had rejected a third offer, from a group of investors that included Charles Allen Jr., Wall Street investment banker best known for his take-over and development of the Syntex Corporation.

USE OF SEALED BIDS Securities Leader Sees DOW FALLS BY 9.39; IS BEING EXPLORED More Commission Cuts

Retail Business

By LEONARD SLOANE

The incoming chairman of the Securities Industry Association, a nationtrade association of some 600 brokerage and investment banking firms, said yesterday that he expected more brokers to offer commission-rate discounts to their retail customers.

David W. Hunter, president of Park-er-Hunter Inc., a Pittsburgh broker-dealer firm, said in an interview that he anticipated that retail discounts would spread throughout the industry. just as institutional rate-cutting been broadly extended. At present, only a handful of brokers offer retail customers discounts below the fixed commission levels that were abolished 18 months ago.

The 48-year-old broker added, however, that as discounting became more widespread among many firms, another group of firms would move in a different direction—offering more "professional" services without any price reductions for those investors who wanted them. Among the services he mentioned were research information and expertise in trading options.

The incoming chairman, who has headed his regional firm since 1971, spoke out strongly in the interview against the entry of banks into the brokerage business, an issue that has caused dissension in the association ranks among its commercial banking members who sell tax-exempt bonds. #### Taxes & Accounting When Auditors Open Their Books

By FREDERICK ANDREWS

If public accounting may be likened to shoemaking, the shoemaker's kids still go shoeless. Among the accounting firms that annually audit thousands of companies, only one-Arthur Andersen & Company, the profession's outspoken maverick-makes its own financial statements public.

Financial disclosure, initiated by Andersen three years ago, is still strongly resisted by rival firms, although in a kind of competition for bigness several of the very largest have let slip unsupported figures on total revenues.

From the first, Andersen's professional peers have criticized its novel, attention-getting annual reports as irrelevant, self-serving and possibly harmful. They insist that neither profitability nor sheer size aptly measure an accounting firm's quality. When pressed the other firms, private partnerships like Andersen, also will own up to perhaps normal disinclination to tell outsiders how much money they

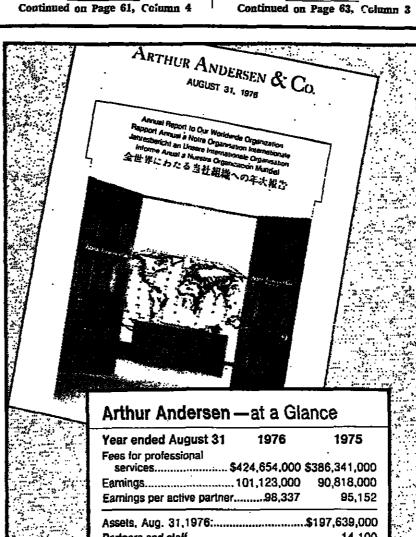

Like the three previous versions, Anderson's most recent annual report, issued last Friday for the year ended Aug. 31, gives an unrivaled financial portrait of a huge contemporary accounting firm: a global enterprise with more than $425 million in fee revenue, close to $200 million in assets, and more than $110 million in partners' capital, or net worth.

In admitting 104 new partners Sept. 1, Andersen pushed its partnership ranks past 1,000-a far cry from the common conception of a partnership as a handful of professionals practicing together as equals. Its worldwide staff has grown past 13,000, spread among 109 offices. Andersen, based in Chicago, is generally considered the nation's second largest firm, trailing Peat, Mar-wick, Mitchell & Company.

But the Andersen firm's awesome dimensions, grown slightly larger than in past reports, are less striking than the report's timely theme of public service. At a juncture when Congress is looking critically at the public accounting profession, the Andersen report gives the impression of a firm getting its ducks in a row. Andersen is probably more strategically placed to defend its record in a public forum than any of its rival firms.

The first item in accountability would have to be the report itself, an innovation that Harvey Kapnick, Andersen's chairman, pushed on his reluctant partners. Under peer criticism, Andersen has steadily improved its initially sketchy financial disclosure. In its 1975 report and again this year—it included a full set of financial statements. They were the equivalent of an audit, Ander-

8.1% after taxes.

That's why preferreds are preferred for corporate income

Today, both large and small corporations find they can substantially improve after-tax yield by using preferred stocks instead of C.D's or similar instruments. In fact, there are A-rated preferreds that return twice as much as C.D's, to a company in the 48% bracket. This comes about through Federal tax provisions that permit an 85% deduction on the dividends of many preferreds.

Actually, preferreds have numerous other advantages. Unlike bonds, preferred issues pay quarterly dividends, contributing to cash flow. They're highly marketable in small or large quantities. And under many circumstances, preferreds can be traded to obtain more than four dividend payments, thereby substantially increasing the total dividend return.

When you think about preferreds, remember that Kidder, Peabody is one of the few firms that consistently maintain markets in these securities. #### M.A.C. Bond Success and Political Hope

The success of the Municipal Assistance Corporation in selling $250 million in new M.A.C. bonds last week clearly reflected a feeling on the part of individual investors that President-elect Jimmy Carter would cure New York City's financial malady forthwith.

However, it is worth noting that the bonds found few takers among institu-tions in the post-election market. And their apathy was nothing new. In a selling effort directed largely at institu-tional prospects that continued through Monday of last week, the agency and its investment bankers made little

Is it possible, then, that the institu-tions know something individuals do not? The answer to that question is "sort of." The point is that Mr. Carter cannot point a magic wand at the Big Apple and remove the worms.

While Mr. Carter will undoubtedly try to help, he will face a Congress whose members, Republican and Demo-crat, must cater to the interests of constituents. Voters in most localities have shown little sympathy for New York City's problems in the past, and there is little reason to believe their attitude has changed. • •

Therefore, there were some observers who found irony in the rush by individ-uals to buy the bonds, attractive though they were from an income standpoint with their tax-exempt yields of 101/4 percent. Not counting the advantage of an exemption from both state and city taxes for local residents, the benefits of the Federal tax exemption are considerable. For a family filing a joint return and reporting taxable income of $24,000 to $28,000 the Federal exemption provides a taxable yield equivalent to more than 16 percent. Individuals in the 50 percent bracket receive a taxable yield equivalent to more than 20 percent.

The high yields of the M.A.C. bonds reflect potential political and legal risks. On the other hand, those intrepid speculators who bought the bonds or accepted them in exchange for New York City notes under a moritorium can congratulate themselves. Some holders have a 20-point profit in the M.A.C. bonds and have enjoyed exceptional tax-exempt income in the interior.

Anyone who acquired the bonds in midyear who would like to take profits should be alert to the fact that the holding period for long-term capital gains tax treatment is extended beginning next Jan. 1 to nine months and a day from the present six months and a day.

Those who have a six-month holding in December and no more than that should be especially conscious new rule. Suppose for example, M.A.C. bonds became long-te. December and a sale was plann Jan. 1 after year-end tax selling.

Prices Decline in Credit Markets in Quiet Tradit

By DOUGLAS W. CRAY

Prices declined yesterday in the Government and corporate sectors of the credit markets as investors continued to ponder the likelihood of a shift in emphasis in Federal Reserve monetary policy. Trading was quiet, described as

If your bank gets negative when the money market gets negative,

ELLITTO THE MARNE

Money is easy now. But some banks will just stick around e good times. When the money dries up, you'll wind up an apology instead of a loan.

At Marine Midland, we don't want anything to come en you and the money you need. So we've made a coment to handle the necessary credit needs of every one of alified customers. No matter what shape the money et is in.

refact, we can point to many times when we've continued care of our customers' needs when other banks topped.

There's a reason why we can back up this commitment. Marine Midland is a major international bank with $9 billion in deposits. Over $541 million in capital and $80 million in reserves. More than 300 branches all over New York State. And offices in 22 countries all over the world.

We want to free you from the inconsistencies of the money market, but don't wait for things to dry up before calling us. The right time to establish a relationship with Marine Midland is right now.

So if your bank ever uses tight money as an excuse for turning you down, tell it to the Marine.

List of Defendants

David A. Cutner, the prosecutor who presented the case to the grand jury, said the indictment also alleged a conspiracy for artificially inflating the stock price of TDA Industries in connection with a public offering of 700,000 shares in November 1971. The offering was sold for more than $3.5 million.

TDA Industries was described by the prosecutors as a conglomerate company, which has interests in building supplies and electronics. Its principal offices are at 122 East 42 Street.

The defendants include Douglas P. Fields of 1040 Park Avenue, president of TDA Industries; Frederick M. Friedman of 911 Park Avenue, the corporation's financial vice president: and Alan E. Sandberg of East Northport, LL, a former officer and director of the corporation. Details of Charges

Another defendent is Eric Berge of tion, an electronics company in which TDA Industries holds a controlling inter-est. The lawyer indicted in the case is Peter S. Davis of 1100 Park Avenue, who was a member of Davis, O'Sullivan, Weil and Wolff, the law firm that was general counsel for TDA Industries.

markets will not be able to absorb the resulting large amounts of refined products. Also, that pipelines from Western ports to inland points, which would take several years to complete, are only in the planning stage, and are encountering environmental problems. Pipelines, moreover, are fixed facilities that can only deliver to one point. What's to be done with an ng to the West Coast, Western expected surplus of 300,000 to 600,000 barrels of crude a daycrude that must be refined to keep our economy going?

Practical solution.

Fortunately, there is a tested and proven way to move bulk crude oil across country-via "pipelines on wheels."

Since early 1974, Southern Pacific delivered over 690 million gallons of crude oil from Utah to a Richmond, California refinery, using only three 70-car "unit trains" weekly. Each train carried over 1.6 million gallons of crude.

Equipment available.

We have the capacity to move more! Our railroad is ready to go. Tank cars and locomotives are available. Service can be started on short notice. And only trains provide the flexibility that will be needed to deliver crude to many inland points-wherever refining capacity or market demand exists.

Were ready now.

Let us put this valuable experience to work to speed Alaskan oil from West Coast ports directly to inland refineries.

It's one more way Southern Pacific can serve the needs of American industry, efficiently and economically. We have the knowhow-the facilities-and the people to do the job.

We're ready to start a "pipelime on wheels" for Alaskan cruderight now!

Levi Gives Conditional Approval For Two Deepwater Gulf Ports

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (UI)-Attorney General Edward H. Levi waived today objections to two proposed deep-water Gulf prts provided the Transportation Department imposed license restrictions to meet certain "antitrust problems."

Mr. Levi's report dealt with proposals of Loop Inc to build a $738 million port 20 miles off the coast of Lafourche County, La., and Seadock Inc. to build an $865 port 30 miles off Freeport, Tex.

Mr. Levi notified Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. he was approving the proposed jint ventures of big oil companies despite antitrust problems they raise because of the nation's need for large oil import

Mr. Levi urged that Mr. Coleman require the companies to allow all shpipers to use both the ports and the onshore receiving and storage ter-minals and allow other companies to become owners to insure fully competitive operations.

Mr. Levi said planning documents indicated the capacity of the ports might have been deliberately reduced. Since that would limit the amounts of oil that could enter the country, Mr. Levi urged Mr. Coleman to require that the ports be expanded if any shipper guaranteed sufficient volume to justify

Mr. Levi also found fault with a proposal that one ownership revision take place after the first five years on the comparative basis of how much each owner has used the ports. Mr. Levi urged that annual revisions be required as long as the ports are in

Exxon to Move Oil In Egyptian Pipeline

Conclusion of an agreement with the Exxon Corporation to move oil through Egypt's new Sudmed pipeline was announced in Cairo yesterday by the Arab nounced in Cairo yesterday by the Arab Petroleum Pipeline Company.

Under the agreement, which had been initialed in London last month, Exxon will move between 100,000 barrels and 150,000 barrels a day, through the 200-mile line for a period beginning early next year and extending until march 1980. The fees for the operation were not disclosed.

Sharon Steel Expanding

The Sharon Steel Corporation said it had started an $11 million expansion program to increase production capacity of electro-galvanized steel and other products. It said the new facilities included a modified electro-galvanizing line at the company's Brainard strap-ping division in Warren, Ohio, and an additional temper mill and pickle line at the Sharon Steel division in Farrell, Pa.

Penn Central Plans Sale PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 8 (AP)— Trustees of the bankrupt Penn Central Transportation Company have asked United States District Court for per-mission to sell two properties on Park Avenue in New York City for $26.3

The proposed sale includes land beneath the 42-story Westvaco Building, at 299 Park Avenue, for about $14.2 million, and the land under the 50story Chemical Bank Building at 277 Park Avenue for about $12.1 million. Penn Central does not own the build-

Bic and Gillette Suits

The Bic Pen Corporation and the Gillette Company, which are suing each other in several countries over disposable razor patents, have issued differing statements concerning out-come of an infringement action in the Netherlands. Gillette said Friday that it had won an injunction in a Dutch court that prevents Bic from selling its razor in the Netherlands. Bic countered yesterday with a statement The $348 million pipeline extends from Ain Sukhna on the Gulf of Suez to Sidi Kreir on the Mediterranean 20 miles west of Alexandria.

Litton Microwave Sales

Litton Industries Inc. said that its sales of microwave ovens in the first nine months of 1976 amounting to and months of 1976 amounting to 326,000 units, were more than 90 percent higher than in the 1975 period. William W. George, president of the Litton Microwave Cooking Products unit, predicted record holiday-season sales for the home microwave oven industry and noted that his company's October shipments of more than 75,000 units had been its biggest monthly total. He estimated that industry-wide sales this year would total 1.6 million units with a retail volume of $650 million-gains of more than 60 percent over 1975 levels.

Babcock to Expand

The Babcock & Wilcox Company announced a $16.4 million modernization and expansion of its tubular products division plant in Milwaukee. The renovation will include the replacement of major steel tube-making equipment and will result in an increase of capacity. The project is expected to be completed in late 1978.

Seat Is Sold for $50,000; Price Lowest Since 1954

A seat on the New York Stock Exchange was sold yesterday for $50,000, down $6,000 from the previous sale last Thursday. This marked the lowest price for a seat transfer since 1954. In late 1968 and early 1969, several Big Board memberships were sold at a record price of $515,000 apiece. Meanwhile, the American Stock Exchange reported two seat sales yesterday for $44,000 each—the first sale being also down $6,000 from the previous transfer last Thursday.

Nathan's Famous Inc. knows how important it is to serve a great hot dog. Nathan's Famous Inc. knows how important Telecom is.

Exactly what does it take to serve a great hot dog, besides great hot dogs, that is? Plenty of people doing plenty of work. And plenty of talking on the phone. That's why Nathan's Famous Inc. needed a special phone system. One designed specifically for their needs. One designed by TELECOM.

Why TELECOM? For 3 important reasons:

Our product. Our performance.

Our price.

TELECOM private phone systems use the most advanced equipment available. Over 90% made by Nippon Electric Co., Ltd., founded 75 years ago by Western Electric, and serving 95 countries around the world.

and headache-free. Our performance:

When TELECOM installs it, TELECOM stands behind it. With maintenance agreements, service contracts, 4-hour emergency service. And a remarkable guarantee backed by TELECOM and Nippon.

So you know it's totally reliable, long-lasting

Investing in your own private phone system means depreciable assets and fixed costs. And doing it all with today's dollars. Plus you get something no one else can give: TELECOM'S unique new financing plan. It's backed by Equico Lessors, a subsidiary of the Equitable Life Assurance Co. It's hard to describe but invaluable to have.

It all makes TELECOM New York's fastest growing inter-connect company serving small needs and large (from a 4-phone system to a satellite hook-up). And serving them darn well. Just ask Nathan's Famous, Inc., or ask Wedgwood, Botany '500', or El San Juan Hotel Or better yet, ask us. Call (212) 392-7700.

tures the firm's demonstrated eagerness to get involved in the public sector. Among other things, it highlights the firm's work as the Treasury Department's monitor of New York City's fiscal reconstruction and its study of the District of Columbia's accounting for a Senate committee.

On two sensitive issues, the report depicts Andersen partnership positions as a lucrative, white, male preserve—though not so lucrative and no longer so white and male as things may seem, Mr. Kapnick insists.

In 1976, average earnings of Ander-sen's 744 United States partners came to $103,500. According to Mr. Kapnick, only $74,000 of that is really pay. He counts $19,000 as a return on partners' investment in the firm and the remaining $10,500 as the cost of fringe and retirement benefits, which the partners, unlike corporate executives, pay them-

Among the 104 newly admitted partners were Andersen's first womán partner and first two blacks. The report also disclosed figures showing higher ratios among Andersen's younger staff. Of Andersen's 2,238 managers—the rung below partner—53 are women, and so are 678 of its 4,225 staff accountants. In its United States staff, 37 of 1,532 managers are minority persons, as are 224 of 3,031 staff accountants.

Standards Board Critic

Renews His Accusations Prof. Abraham J. Briloff, a frequent and acerbic critic of the accounting profession and its leading firms, is standing firm on his sharp criticisms of the Financial Accounting Standards Board, the private-sector rule-making

Board, the private-sector rule-making group.

In a speech last week before the Hartford Society of Financial Analysts, Professor Briloff asserted that Marshall S. Armstrong, the board's chairman, had "lost his cool" in a recent letter attacking Professor Briloff's highly critical testimony before a Congressional subcommittee last spring.

"We have had a surfeit of compromise of the vulgar oragmatism, of mise, of the vulgar pragmatism, of pussy-footing and inching along," the professor of accounting at Baruch College reiterated. In his view, the accom-"mountainous laborings are usually too little and almost invariably too late."

Among other charges Mr Briloff accused the board of vacillating in its standard on marketable securities and granting "special dispensations" when it adopted rules on charging off re-search and development costs and on income-tax accounting for oil and gas companies. Professor Briloff also questioned the board's independence from the major accounting firms that help finence it, take part in its deliberations, and sometime lend it staff. In his view Mr. Armstrong was trying to set rules while ignoring whether the rules were fairly implemented. Mr. Briloff further criticized the board as preoccupied with "the impossible dream" of a conceptual framework for accounting.

"The problem is not that we don't have a tolerably good body of under-lying knowledge," he contended. "It is just that the good doctrine is forsaken

Remember when a Bull was an optimist and a Bear was a pessimist?

Well it doesn't work that way in futures trading. There is absolutely no onus in "going short", which means investing in the belief that the price of some commodity is going down. Ask any grocery shopper whether it's un-American to believe that egg prices, for example, are headed lower. (Or ask an egg producer if it's un-American to think they're going higher.)

There are about two dozen different commodity futures contracts traded on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. On any given day some are going up and some are going down -so there's always opportunity. Those producers and other people who foresee the price trends correctly are making money. Those who do not are losing.

It's that simple. And it's that challenging.

Speer Asks Tax Reforms to Spur Investment Aid to Output and Jobs

The chairman of the board of the United Steel Corporation, Edgar B. Speer, said in Boston yesterday that tax reforms to stimulate capital investment were needed to expand production and create jobs.

At a news conference prior to his addressing a convention for New England stockholders here, Mr. Speer said the Government had shown a "distressing lack of understanding" of the importance of capital investment.

He said that about 13 per cent of the gross national product currently is reinvested in tools and machinery but that the percentage should be about 22. The 13 per cent rate, he said, is "the lowest rate of any major industrial nation."

Mr. Speer said he outlined a number of proposed tax reforms to Jimmy Carter in a meeting before the presidential election. His suggestions included, he said: faster depreciation of productive equipment; a first-year write-off for pollution abatement equipment; a permanent increase in the investment tax credit, and elimination of "double-taxation" on dividends.

The Canadian Finance Minister, Donald McDonald, warned yesterday that a further increase in oil prices by oil-producing countries would jeopardize the "shaky" economic recovery of the Western world. Such a rise would risk not only the recovery in developed countries but would even "further prejudice the situation of non-oil-producing developing countries that have hardly managed to keep up with past increases," Mr. MacDonald said. He spoke at the annual meeting of the American Petroleum Institute in San Francisco.

Business leaders will not get the attention of Congress until they have the vocal backing of a solid constituency, Reginald H. Jones, chairman of the General Electric Company, said yesterday.

He said at a meeting of the National Investors Relations institute in New York that the "natural constituency of business should include our employees, our customers, our suppliers, and in fact the whole middle class that works for, buys from and invests in Aemrica."

He warned, however, that business would not get the support of such people unless it worked for it. This means, he said, "earning their trust, discussing the issues, demonstrating how they are affected and asking for their support."

Herman Sokol, 59, who joined the Bristol-Meyers Company in 1962 and has recently been chairman of its pharmaceutical and health care group, has been named president of the company, effective Jan. 1. He succeeds Richard L. Gelb, 52, president for the last 10 years, who remains chairman of the board and chief executive.

Frank A. Sprole, who joined the pharmaceutical concern in 1950, has been named to the new position of vice chairman of the board. Bruce S. Gelb, 49, and a brother of Richard, and William R. Miller, 48, and James M. Tuholski, 52, have been named executive vice presidents.

Despite the impending change in administrations, a successful conclusion of the world trade talks by the end of next year remain a "viable goal," William N. Walker, head of the United States delegation at the talks, emphasized yesterday in Geneva.

At a brief news conference, he said that concern over the fact that negotiations in Geneva could be slowed as a result of the United States election were "greatly overstressed." He pointed out that a Democratic-controlled Congress and all major business sectors have been closely involved in the development of trade policy under the trade law enacted in January 1965.

The real question, he said, is whether economic recovery worldwide will be large enough to "give politicians the needed elbow room to shift policies and make the accommodations that all Governments will have to make."

Paul McCracken, who was chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers

Edgar B. Speer

in the Nixon Administration, said yesterday in Atlanta that unless President-elect Jimmy Carter resisted pressure to stimulate the economy, the nation could have a recession about 1978. On the other hand, if Mr. Carter maintained a policy of moderate economic growth he "could find himself presiding over a sustained economic expansion in the rest of this century." Mr. McCracken said. He spoke at a convention of the National Building Material Distributors Association.

cluded a trip to China to discuss packaging ideas. The trip suggests that China, after its recent political strife, is anxious to expand trade.

gama, an economist at Kidder, Peabody & Company, said the sudden setback in China's foreign trade was related to the opposition by a radical faction in China to continuance of Mr. Chou's economic development policies. His program involved the export of large quantities of Chinese oil and other raw materials in exchange for industrial equipment and intermediate manufac-

The economic tension in China eemed to ease during the summer after the downfall of Teng Hsiao-ping, who had been Mr. Chou's designated successor, but it resumed following the death of Mao Tse-tung in September.

With the subsequent arrest of Chairman Mao's widow, Chrang Ching, and three other leftist opponents of the Hua Kuo-feng regime, the moderate fac-tion seems to have consolidated its control and has reinstituted the economic drive started by Mr. Chou.

In discussions with leading business-men and bankers in Hong Kong and Japan recently, it was obvious that many of them were hoping to see the Hua administration prevail. Active trade with China is, of course, impor-tant to them. And it could have major corollary effects on the trade and the economic recovery of several Western

From the United States' and Europe's standpoint, a return to normalcy in China-Japan trade would have at least one important additional effect: it could lessen Japan's efforts to find alternative markets for its steel products in this country and on the Continent. Growing steel exports from Japan this year to those markets created severe tensions on both sides of the Atlantic. It would also obviate, to some extent, the need for the strong-currency na-tions such as the United States, West tions such as the United States, such as Sam Naka- Germany and Japan to pursue expansionary domestic policies to provide better markets for the products of such weak-currency countries as Britain, Italy and France. The strong nations have been reluctant to do this because of inflationary consequences.

Toward the end of last month, Mr.
Nakagama noted, the Chinese agreed to buy an additional 1.3 million tons, or a bit more, of Japanese steel in the period from now until March of next year. That total would be at least dou-ble what it was in the last six months.

The Japanese economy has also been helped by the recent agreement by China to sell more oil to Japan. The year's flow is now estimated at 47.6 million barrels, considerably less than last year's shipments of 56 million barrels to Japan but nonetheless of significant help to the energy-short country, which depends heavily on oil imports.

"At a time when competition in the Western steel markets is intensifying, the reopening of the China market comes as a favorable windfell." Mr. Nakagama said. "If this latest steel deal is followed by a further rise in purchases in 1977, the Chinese might play a significant role in stabilizing the economies of the industrial countries next year."

Thus, apart from their interest in China's internal political developments, Tokyo, Bonn and Washington are taking a particularly keen interest in current trade developments on the Chinaca maintain Chinese mainland.

It seems fair to conclude that the success of Mr. Hua's moderate faction in China may have highly positive effects on the world's political and economic conditions. Whether it does however, will de-pend on many factors—China's own priorities, the outcome of its political struggle and the Chinese philosophy

Spilling into Steel Industry

Some of the slowness in appliances is spilling over into the steel industry. A spokesman for the Inland Steel Company said that demand for steel from appliance makers "hit its peak in April, May and some in June." He added:

"Then there was the traditional summer lull for industry vacations and the like, but demand has not picked up since then and we have found more evidence of slowdowns in such orders in recent weeks. Whether it's because of manufacturers trying to work off inventories of finished products or inventories of steel we don't know."

In late October the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company temporarily closed a blast furnace and an open-hearth furnace at two sites in Ohio and Indiana.

A spokesman said that 100 to 200 workers would be affected by the action, designed to adjust inventories of finished and semifinished steels. Yesterday the spokesman said the Ohio facility was back in operation and the melting rate at Burns Harbor, Ind., was increasing, although be added:

"We don't see any inventory turn-around. In the first quarter we cited higher demand from appliance makers for our pickup. Now, it's going to automobile and farm equipment makers."

The most recent statistics from the Association of Home Appliance Manufactur ers showed that shipments of all appli-ances through September were running 7 percent ahead of the 1975 level, which was not a particularly strong year. How-ever, September shipments trailed the year-ago level by 8.7 percent. During September, shipments of dehumidifiers, dishwashers, refrigerators, freezers, washers and dryers were behind levels a year earlier.

A spokesman for the trade association said yesterday that "October totals are

Pan American chairman, William T. Seawell, in Singapore for the airline meeting, said in a speech he was to deliver to the Singapore American Business Council:

"It is sheer lunacy to fly a 360passenger airplane with only 180 passengers in it, with a full-charter plane carrying another 180 passengers flying alongside of it."

Mr. Seawell contended that the financial strength of the industry had been hurt by "regulatory shortsightedness and industry practices pertaining to such fac-tors as excess capacity and the relation of scheduled and charter services.'

'Economic Trauma' Cited He said that the "economic trauma that beset the world starting in late 1973," when the oil crisis began, "enormously intensified the business problems the airines faced.'

"The question now is," Mr. Seawell said, "can the international air transport industry restart the cycle of growth and progress that in the past produced such beneficial results for the industry as well as for the public?"

of the New York Stock Exchange and the American Stock Exchange. Both ex-changes have appointed committees to study this proposal, long espoused by the securities association, but have not held formal joint meetings.

"I would be for a merger because of evidence of the cost-savings in-volved," Mr. Hunter said, "That could be a positive step toward the creation of a central market."

The executive was asked whether he actually expected a merger to take place and, if so, when. "If I had no time limit, I'd bet that it would occur," he answered, looking to Mr. O'Brien to so icit his opinion.

Mr. O'Brien responded that he believed any potential merger "should be fitted" to the work of the National Market Association, a loosely-organ-ized grouping of the six major securities exchanges, including the Big Board and the Amex. He noted that a staff meeting of the N.M.A. would take place today to discuss various matters con-cerning interexchange cooperation and indicated that an executive-level meeting would be scheduled soon to make recommendations to the National Mar-ket Advisory Board.

Mr. Hunter, who has said that he intended to make the advancement of economic education in schools an important part of his program next year, was frank in assessing the S.LA. programs and goals. 'There's a very large element of self-interest in what we do," he said. "But our cause will not be very meaningful unless we broaded it to a position of merit within our country.'

T.G.I. Surveys Magazine Audiences

By PHILIP H. DOUGHERTY

The Axiom Market Research Bureau, a subsidiary of the J. Walter Thompson Company, yesterday issued its fall edi-tion of Target Group Index, a syndicated study of magazine audiences.
"We have found not much in the way of change," said Timothy Joyce, its president, comparing the findings with those of last spring's report.

But there were some big swings among the 115 magazines and groups of magazines that T.G.I. surveys. New York magazine's readers per copy dropped to 3.47 from 5.14 and Ms. magazine's dropped from 3.38 to 4.44.

The W. R. Simmons Associates study released a week ago showed that New York's readers per copy dropped from 4.16 to 3.51, It also showed that with 3.58 female readers per copy Ms. had the highest pass-along audience per copy of any women's magazine.

In the hot competition between Time and Newsweek, T.G.L showed that in total audience Time increased 7 percent since the spring report to 16.9 million and the latter increased 6 percent to 15.2 million. Time's readers per copy went from 3.75 to 3.58 and Newsweek's to 5.18 from 4.96.

Simmons puts the total Time audience at 20.6 million and Newsweek at 17.8 million. All of the figures given are for adult audiences and Mr. Joyce said that the probable reason for his service's figures being lower than Simmons' is that T.G.I. projects a total adult population of 141.6 million while Simmons projects 149 million.

The significance of these audience statistics to the advertising community is that since the advent of television, total audiences, rather than total purchasers of a publication, have become chasers of a publication, nave become the measure of advertising efficiency. The importance of the research data can be illustrated by the fact that a dramatic drop in audience for Esquire in the 1974-75 Simmons study resulted in an equally dramatic drop in advertising resulted.

The new T.G.I. report shows that Esquire's readers per copy increased to 3.47 from the spring's report of 3.09. Its male audience, T.G.I. says, increased 4 percent to 2.4 million. Simple statement of the state mons puts that male audience at 3.1

The new T.G.I. report shows Smith-sonian magazine's audience increased 21 percent in the last six months and 42 percent in the last year. The total is 2.6 million. Much of the increase, Mr. Joyce believes, is because of circulation gains.
While Smithsonian, which reports extensively on the natural sciences, was gaining total audience, Oui, Penthouse and Playboy all showed some decrease in total male audiences— Plaboy down 2 percent to 13.6 million, Penthouse down 7 percent to 7.7 mil-lion and Oui down 11 percent to 3.2

The T.G.I. data is the result of just over 28,000 consumer responses obtained between July 1975 and last September. According to Mr. Joyce, T.G.I. got a 75 percent response rate to the initial interview while between 60 to 65 percent of that number filled out the questionnaire on media habits and product usage.

Like the Summons study, T.G.I.'s re-search has been audited by the Advertising Research Foundation.

T.G.I. has 310 subscribers to this eighth study, an increase of about 110 from a year ago. They are made up of ad agencies, advertisers, magazines and broadcasters. Among the major publishers and publications that don't subscribe, Mr. Joyce said, are Time Inc., TV Guide, Family Circle, The Ladies' Home Journal and U. S. News & World Report.

The Meredith Corporation recently came in as did the Reader's Digest, Redbook and McCall's.

The price range for subscribing goes from $2,500 for the smallest agency to $80,000 for the largest magazine.

served since February 1973. James J. Jordan, president of the agency, did not say where those con-flicts would arise but a look at his client list shows National Distillers as a major

New York office client.
Brace B. Foster, advertising manager Brace B. Foster, advertising manager of Taylor, said yesterday that no new agency had been selected. As a matter of fact Taylor hasn't gotten up a list of possibles yet. The account bills about $2.50 million, which should get agency executives salivating. However, Mr. Foster says his company will not consider only usualization. sider any unsolicited shop. Don't call us, etc.

Grey Ad Profits Up

Grey Advertising reports a 35.6 per-cent increase in earnings for the third quarter. Gross income for the third quarter was up 17.2 percent over a similar period last year to $13.6 mil-lion. Net income was $533,000, or 60 cents a share, compared with 33 cents.

For the nine months, gross income showed a gain of 18 per cent to $41.9 million, while net income rose 49.1 percent to $2.1 million, or $2.08 a share, compared with $1.20 last year.

Times to Lift Rates

The New York Times is increasing the run-of-paper advertising rates for all classifications an average of 7 per-cent beginning Jan. I. The newspaper said the increase was necessary to defray labor and newsprint costs.

Hamel Joins Solow

Austin Hamel, who had been an associate creative director at Benton & Bowles, decided early in 1974 to open up a creative service. That caper didn't exactly turn out to be a world beater so he joined Norman, Craig & Kummel and served there as a creative director Now he's going to try the old creative service bit again, but this time he won't be alone. He's joining the Martin Solow Creative Service, which will henceforth be known as the Martin Solow and Austin Hamel Creative Service.

Ally for Lindbergh Fund

Carl Ally was a World War II pilot and still flies a plane. He's also got an ad agency called Carl Ally Inc., which among other things does the advertis-ing for Pan Am. It is not suprising, therefore, that the Ally shop has be come the volunteer agency for the Charles A. Lindbergh Memorial Fund, which seeks to raise $5 million to produce income for fellowships. Fund raising starts next May on the 50th anniversary of Lindy's Paris flight.

Newspaper Estimate Up

Things are going so well in the advertising business that the media associations are forced into continually revising their 1976 ad revenue estimates. This is something they don't mind doing when they revise upward. Jack Kauffman, president of the Newspaper Advertising Bureau, has just bumped his estimate to $10 billion. He calls that conservative.

In October the fall in the value of the pound was around 5½ percent. The pound fell again today reversing the firmer trend of last week. Adding to the gloom in the foreign exchange market as well as the stock market was the admission by Mr. Healey

The sources added that while the meet ing was not called to discuss any plans for changing the schedule of gold sales "they could not rule out the possibility that the subject might arise."

The board's executive directors have begun considering proposals to alter the gold sale schedule and the sources said that as a matter of course the fund would consult with the market before making

COIN OPEN THE But quality simply isn't able as the kind of junk that chokes the Saturday morning schedule. Quality is usually more costly, demands more time and effort. Thus does it become a rare electronic bird. But it exists, as can be seen in two of this week's offerings: "Big Henry and the Polka Dot Kid," on NBC's Special Treat this afternoon at 4; and "P. J. and the President's Son," on ABC's Afterschool

Special tomorrow afternoon at 4:30, W. W. Lewis's script for "Big Henry" is based on a short story by Morley Callaghan. Young Luke has been shipped from Toronto to an uncle's farm after the death of his parents in an accident. Uncle Henry, a big old bear of a man dedicated to being "practical," is about to "put to sleep" a blind dog called Dan, Luke saves the dor.

upsetting Big Henry's ideas of obedi-ence and practicality.

Filmed on a rural location, the program skillfully distills the experiences of youth in the country. Luke's best friend turns out to be a strange, neighboring widow who drives around on a tractor called Blue Moose. Edwana likes to sit in her tree house watching birds. Luke gets to do chores and go fishing. He even learns how to feil tall trees, a lesson that leads to a nearfatal accident and Big Henry's renewed determination to kill old Dan. That is the key crisis point of the tale.

Before it's over, "Big Henry and the Polka Dot Kid" has a lot of quiet and valuable observations to make about rural living and human nature. Produced by Linda Gottheb and directed by Richard Marquand, the hour works very effectively, thanks largely to a collection of high performances. Chris Barnes as young Luke and Ned Beatty as Big Henry are a wonderfully watched pair of antoganists, each making his own case with splendid conviction. And, as the eccentric Edwina, Estelle Parsons gets to do one of her lusty Mother Earth routines, and this is the best one she has been allowed to concoct in years. Others in this outstanding cast include Robert Gerringer, Paul Benedict, Estelle Omens, William Duell and Wolfie as blind Old Dan.

Productions, is a contemporary variaand insignificant in the bustling atmosphere of the White House. His every move is watched by a Secret Service man. He is hauled out for official ceremonies. He has little privacy. His every wish, even for something as simple as a peanut butter sandwich, triggers a major production. On the other side, P. J. feels his "ordinary" life to be un-eventful and colorless. Suffering from grass-is-always-greener delusions, he is ecstatic to receive an invitation from the President's son, "Let me give you the address," says Preston, "It's 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue—that's the big white house."

boys discover that they can speak out. if given the opportunity. The plot twists devised by Thomas Baum, the writer, are less inspired than serviceable. And the young Mr. Kerwin, while quite solid as an actor, is a touch too youthful physically. Both Preston and P. J. are supposed to have some plot involvement with girls of their own age. But the poor girls wind up looking as if they are robbing the cradle.

Perhaps the most impressive aspect of this production is the sense of reality; maintained in the White House scenes. With Larry Elikann as director, the official settings are marvelously realized. from government limousines to official, tours. The story is given an extra dabof conviction. And, once again, the "messages" are nicely packaged for easy consumption: It's important to care about people—old people and poor people. Or: People can change thingsthat's the whole point of America. Not earth-shattering, precisely, but they beat "Scooby Doo/Dynomutt" any day.

MATCH GAME PM ᡂ 7:30 PM ⑦

We asked America's top businessmen about business magazines. This is what they said.

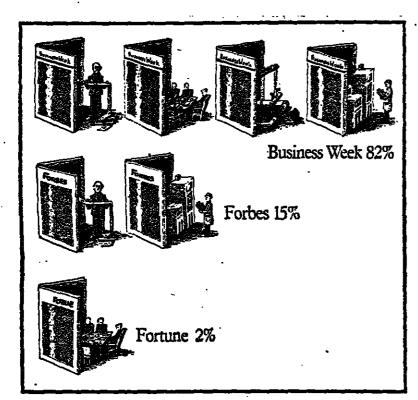

Which one contains the best writing?

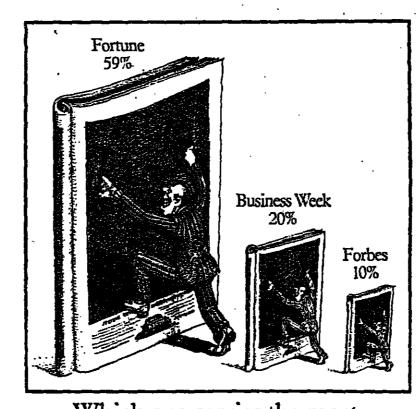

Which one has the most persuasive advertising?

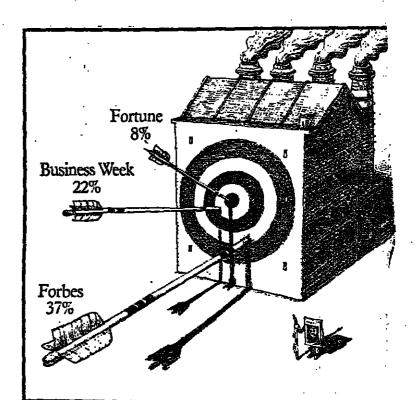

Which one is easiest to read?

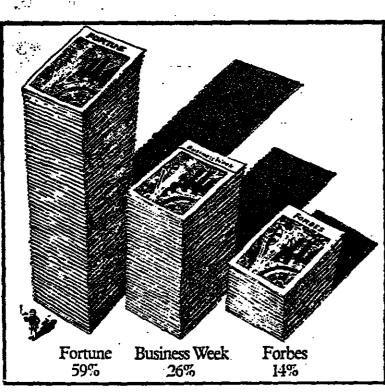

Which one best keeps its readers up to date on business events?

Which one carries the most interesting advertising?

Which one is least accurate?

In which one would you like to see a major story on your company?

Erdos and Morgan recently asked officers of the top one thousand companies-chairmen, presidents, vice presidents, treasurers, secretaries and controllers-for their opinions of Business Week, Forbes and Fortune. 999 executives responded.

You can see the results for yourself. In nearly every instance, Fortune was the winner. Not just by a hair-but overwhelmingly.

Most authoritative? Best writing? Where would they most like to see their company story? Of course they named Fortune. You'd expect them to.

But why did they see the advertising in Fortune as more persuasive and more interesting—when the same advertising often runs in all three magazines?

Obviously, the Fortune climate makes something happen to advertising that doesn't happen anyplace else. It's a valuable edge.

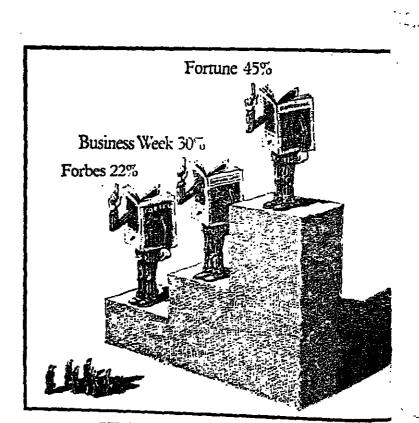

Business leaders get more involved with Fortune, so they get more involved with the advertising. They respond to Fortune, so they respond to the advertising. The survey proves it.

The conclusion is clear and simple: dollar for dollar, your advertising investment gets more impact in Fortune.

You get more than mere advertising exposure in Fortune. You get real communication with the people who can act on your business or consumer message. Isn't that what advertising is all about?

FORTUNE

Nobody takes you to the top like Fortune.

Which one is the most authoritative?
